DENBIGH.

Mr. William John Sr., who since last fall has been attending to some business in New Ontario, but did not enjoy very good health while there, has arrived home again.

Mr. Henry Bartsch, who was a couple of weeks away visiting relatives in Frontenac County, is also home again, but has some notion of changing his place of residence before long.

Rev. Sampson of Plevna, has enlisted for overseas service and preached his farewell service in the Methodist Church last Sunday evening. Lenten services are held in the Lutheran Church every Wednesday forenoon during Lent.

Miss Clara Fritsch, graduated nurse, who has enjoyed quite an extended visit with her parents and other relatives here, left again for New York city to resume her calling there.

Herman Berndt left last Wednesday for Saskatchewan where he has engaged with a farmer to work during the season.

Mr. L. Gendron, teacher at Vennachar, called on a few of his friends in our village last Saturday.

Mr. F. Allen, teacher of our village school, has arranged for a weeks leave to pay a visit to his home at Sharbot Lake.

Robert Stein has just finished moving his household goods and chattels off the farm he lately sold to Chas. Petzold, on his other farm near White Lake, and Charles took possession of his newly acquired estate.

WAR SUMMARY OF THE LATEST EVENTS

The battle of Malancourt continues with varying fortune, but on the whole the French lines are maintained with great tenacity. For the gains they are making on the west bank of the Meuse the Germans are paying a staggering price. The Woods of Avocourt and Malancourt occupy a considerable tract of territory some 8000 yards to the west of the river. Between them and Verdun, which lies 6 miles to the southwest, are the villages of Malancourt, Bethincourt, Esnes, Cumieres and Chettancourt. Closer to the citadel of Verdun a group of fortified positions command long stretches of bare sloping land, up which the Germans must advance in their attack. When the German drive on the east bank of the river was stopped at Douamont and Vaux a month ago large bodies of troops were transferred by the Crown Prince to the west side of the Meuse, and an attempt was made to force a way to Verdun down the railway track along the river side. A considerable advance was made, during which Forges and Regneville were captured, but the Germans failed to take Deadman's Hill the key position between Bethincourt and the river, despite very great sacrifices and frequent assaults.

This frontal rush having proved as costly and unprofitable as that on the east bank of the river, the German main attack was directed still farther to the west, where the Woods of Malancourt and Avocourt afforded shelter for the waiting German infantry while the artillery prepared the way for an assault. By hard fighting the French were driven out of the greater part of the wooded area, and there, during the past week, the Germans have been making ready for an attack on Malancourt and Esnes. The drive began on Tuesday afternoon after a fierce bombardment. The assault of the enemy failed, successive waves of German troops being swept back towards the woods with heavy losses.

That was the position when at dawn Wednesday the French decided to relieve the pressure of the enemy by a counter-attack. After an intense bombardment, the German positions in the Wood of Avocourt were assailed. The French infantry penetrated and occupied the southeast corner of the wood for a distance of 300 yards and took an important work, known as the redoubt of Avocourt. The Germans brought up fresh troops and during the day launched three successive attacks on the victorious Frenchmen in Avocourt Wood, all of which the midnight Paris report says were and took an important work, known as the redoubt of Avocourt. The Germans brought up fresh troops and during the day launched three successive attacks on the victorious Frenchmen in Avocourt Wood, all of which the midnight Paris report says were completely repulsed.

Meanwhile, about a mile and a half to the northeast the Germans scored a considerable success. Advancing from the Wood of Malancourt towards the village of the same name, which stretches along the roadway skirting the forest, the Germans gained a footing in the French advanced positions north of Malancourt and occupied two houses in the village, capturing during their advance 12 officers and 486 men, one gun and four machine guns. The French midnight report states that all the efforts of the enemy to push farther were stopped by the fire of the French. The day's operations which must have cost both sides very heavy losses, leave the situation pretty much as it was—the German win at Malancourt being fairly well offset by the French penetration of the Wood of Avocourt. The battle is likely to be renewed Thursday, with even greater intensity, for the possession of the Malancourt salient.

Gregory Mason, a correspondent of the New York Outlook, who has been visiting Russia, has something to say of the scores made by the various nations in the taking of prisoners. Germany, according to the figures which quotes, had about 1,200,000 up to November last, Austria about 800,000 and Russia about 750,000. The number of prisoners held by the western allied nations is not known, but it is believed that the allied total east and west is smaller than that of the Germanic powers, chiefly because the Teuton has "out-captured" the Slav. Germany is using large numbers of her prisoners of war to increase agricultural production, and her crop of 1915 was in no small measure the product of this forced labor.

"Our task is not finished" Mr. Lloyd-George says, in an interview given out in Paris. "We will never be satisfied with the munition output until the end of the war." It is of interest to note that recent contracts are based on the assumption that shell in enormous quantities will be needed for many months. Contracts also are being awarded for other things than shell on the supposition that the armies of the Allies will have to spend a third winter in the trenches.

In the Black Sea region the Russians continue to press the Turks westerly along the coast towards Trebizond. During Monday night the Russian forces, which had crossed the Ogden River and occupied the heights on the west bank, were subjected to a series of desperate Turkish counter-attacks. All of them failed, and the Turks having suffered terrible losses continued their retreat.

Mrs. Jane McLeod Chapman, declared to be one hundred and sixteen years old, died at Smith's Falls.

James Cumming, an elderly miller of Lyn, was instantly killed by a train on a crossing near Brockville.

MORE NEW BOOKS AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

The Public Library Board has secured and placed upon its shelves another large consignment of new books. Among them are several more of the latest publications touching upon subjects bearing upon the great war. It is to be hoped the members will take advantage of these and the numerous other volumes previously purchased with a view of qualifying the reading public to express intelligent opinions upon the complex questions with which we are daily confronted.

THE BERLIN COURT UNDER WILLIAM II.—This is too expensive a book for the ordinary private collection and this is where a public library proves to be of such valuable service in a small town. Here is a book everyone should read, yet very few could afford to buy it. Don't keep it out too long as others will be wanting it.

THE BOOK OF WIRELESS.—It will never be known how many lives and how much treasure have been lost and gained since the outbreak of war through the intervention of wireless telegraphy. This book written by an expert shows you exactly how to make set up and operate a wireless station.

IN TIMES LIKE THESE, by Nellie McLung.—This writer is one of Canada's most distinguished leaders in the cause of woman. In response to repeated requests she has in this volume set down her opinions on many of the vital questions. They are sane opinions, temperately expressed, illustrated by humorous and pathetic incidents and anecdotes. The up-to-date woman WILL read it. The up-to-date man SHOULD read it.

BETWEEN THE LINES, by Boyd Cable.—Here is an exceptionally good book for those who wish really to understand what the war looks like to those in the midst of it. The whole volume was written within sound of the German guns and most of it within shell and rifle range. It makes you hear, see, feel, smell the front. The very taste of battle smoke is in its pages.

THE UNDYING STORY, by Douglas Newton.—The superb "fighting re-mains treat" of the British Army from Ypres, which foiled the German dash on Paris and saved the Allies line. Described in the swift, flashing pen-strokes of a master, it is a story which makes the mind thrill and the blood run faster in the veins. Mr. Newton is considered in England to be the greatest descriptive artist discovered by the war.

MUNSTERBERG AND MILITARISM CHECKED.—The German propagandists had hoped to do much mischief in America through the writings of such men as Munsterberg, a disciple and cheap imitator of the overfed and bumptious war-lords of Prussia. In this volume, Professor Squires exposes their untruthful and illogical processes of reasoning.

Overland

---top class
---bottom price

This car is the result of a definite purpose to supply a definite need with definite finality.

It is built for the man whose purse cannot afford a big expensive car—

For the man whose pride cannot afford an unsightly, little uncomfortable car—

And it is a very definite success. Beauty is not necessarily a matter of size.

Neither does size altogether control comfort.

But skill, experience and facilities are required to build a small, beautiful, comfortable, economical car.

In a word, it required Overland organization.

And here is the small, light car—complete to the last detail.

Its importance is on a par with its beauty, comfort and completeness.

And its price—$850—is far below any former price for any completely equipped automobile—regardless of appearance or comfort considerations.

A glance at the car impresses you immediately with its beauty and finish.

As you look it over and read its specifications, you realize its absolute completeness.

But you must ride in it to appreciate its comfort.

You must drive it to get the thrill its performance will give you.

You can own one of these cars.

But act promptly—for no car was ever in such demand.

In spite of record productions and advancing prices, there is a shortage of cars.

The demand naturally centres on top class at bottom price—this small, light car.

And no other car at, anywhere near its price can compare with this one for beauty, performance, comfort, completeness and economy.

COLEBROOK.

Wagar, a highly respected citizen, died on Tuesday after two weeks illness. Deceased was fifty-one years of age, and here all his life. A number of years ago he met with an accident, which severed part of his leg, and caused such a shock to his system that he never fully recovered. Year by year grew steadily weaker, and a funeral was held at the residence on Thursday, March 1st, at 2 p.m. Rev. Mr. Bunner, of the Methodist Church, officiated. Deceased was a member, preacher, and survivor of the late war. Surviving him are his wife, widow of the late Wilgar, of this place; his wife, Mrs. Reuben, of Enterbrook, of Colebrook, and Byteworth, N. Y.; three sons, William, of Napanee; and three daughters, John Kellar, of Deseronto; Miss Lena, of Napanee, and Miss Lena, of Napanee. The remains were conveyed to the cemetery vault.

gandists had hoped to do much mischief in America through the writings of such men as Munsterberg, a disciple and cheap imitator of the overfed and bumptious war-lords of Prussia. In this volume, Professor Squires exposes their untruthful and illogical processes of reasoning.

MODERN AUSTRIA, by Virginio Gayda.—A study of Austria just before the outbreak of the war. The author's main theme is the struggle between the feudal aristocracy, German and intensely clerical and conservative, and the popular movements towards racial autonomy and democracy. The future of Austria is perhaps the most interesting problem raised by the war, and Signor Gayda's book adds greatly to our knowledge of Austrian affairs. A section on the problem of Italia Irredenta has been especially written for the English edition.

MY ADVENTURES AS A SPY—The fact that this volume is written by Sir Robert Baden-Powell should be sufficient to recommend it to the reading public.

FIGHTING FRANCE—by Edith Wharton. To those who like a little fiction interwoven with their literature upon the war, here is just the book that is sure to please.

THE SEARCH FOR THE SPY—by Ross Kay and

UNDER FRENCH'S COMMAND—by Captain Breton. The boys have not been forgotten and these two books will be in great demand. While intended especially for the youthful reader there is no reason why these two interesting books should not be read by the adults also.

DENMARK AND THE DANES—While Denmark is not in the conflict and bids fair to escape it, yet a study of the social economic and political movements of the country is of great interest at the present time. The volume is beautifully illustrated and will be enjoyed by the reader who likes a really good book.

Seaplanes and Ships Descend on Schleswig-Holstein.

LONDON, March 28.—Great Britain gave her first effective answer
Saturday morning to German air raids. A squadron of five seaplanes, convoyed by light cruisers and destroyers, crossed the North Sea and went straight to the home of the German planes which have frequently visited the English coast of late.
They attacked the German airship sheds in Schleswig, east of the Island of Sylt. They were met, however, by an effective anti-aircraft defence, while their convoys were engaged by German patrol boats. A battle royal, both in the air and at sea, outside the harbor of Sylt, ensued. Only two of the British planes returned, the three others, including a battleplane, were brought down,
according to the official statements.
Stormy weather prevailed, and in the course of an exciting naval engagement, the British destroyer Medusa collided with the destroyer Laverock.
The Medusa is believed to have been lost, but her crew are safe. The Germans, on their part, lost two armed trawlers, the Braunschweig and the Otto Rudolph.

During the engagement four German torpedo boats were cut off by a number of British destroyers, but eventually succeeded in making their escape, says a despatch to the Central News from Copenhagen.

The Copenhagen correspondent of The Daily Mail said in a later telegram last night:

Several miles off the Island of Fance there was fighting Saturday between a squadron of twenty ships and a German squadron five cruisers and twenty destroyers and two Zepelin. A number of German aeroplanes also took part in the engagement.

Two German vessels were disabled, the remainder retired behind the Island of Roem, on the west coast of Schleswig. During the fighting several British seaplanes suddenly rose from the warships and raided Toendern, where they dropped bombs on the Zeppelin sheds, which found their mark. Two aeroplanes, however, were shot down.

Sinking of Sussex Has Aroused Di-

WASHINGTON, March 28.—While everything indicates that the Chan-deliberately from bloodlust or an attempt to force the United States into the war, official information upon which President Wilson will decide

Four American citizens who were were said in despatches Saturday not to be among the rescued, still are unaccounted for.

Only one despatch of importance concerning the explosion which dam-

LONDON, March 28.—The long-mining and artillery actions. The British scored an important success when, after successful mine explosions, the Northumberland and Royal Fusiliers rushed forward and launched a furious assault against the German salient at St. Eloi, due south of Ypres. They broke through the first and second line of the German trenches on a front of 600 yards, inflicting heavy losses on the defenders and capturing two officers and 168 men. The fact that the troops who accomplished the feat are mentioned in the official report may mean that the British headquarters staff has decided that in future the battalions taking part in battles will be named in the reports.

The violent German shelling of the French lines on the west bank of the Meuse, particularly in the vicinity of the village and wood of Malancourt, continued Sunday, but no infantry attack has yet been made, although the bombardment of this sector has been kept up since Saturday without cessation.

Esnes and Hill 304 were included in zone of specially heavy fire Saturday night. So sustained has been the cannonade directed against the French positions in this sector that it is assured another infantry attack is contemplated.

The French guns have been very active for the past 48 hours along the whole Verdun front, notably to the east of the Meuse, where the German fire recently has been only intermittent.

Two attacks were made by the Germans Saturday night against the French trenches at Croix des Carmes, in the Bois le Pretre. Both were repulsed and the Germans driven back

WHEN YOU GREET A FRIEND.

Tell Him He's Looking Fine and See How It Cheers him.

"By George, old man, you are looking fine!"

Did you ever notice how you perk up, no matter how poorly you were feeling before, when some friend greets you in that way?

According to the secretary of the Colorado board of health, the human system just naturally begins to tone up under the stimulus of such greetings.

He declares it is an aid to health and a help in preventing disease, and to that end he advocates a "tell your friends how well they look" movement.

"It is not only bad taste to talk of your pains and ailments," says the doctor, "but a reflection on your intelligence and knowledge of sanitation and good health. We are not far from the time when the cause of illness will have to be accounted for personally."

"In other words, nature is no longer going to be blamed for sickness when it is simply the result of ignorance, indifference or wrong ways of living."

Do you not think it worth giving the doctor's idea a try?

We do! So here goes:

"By George, you are looking fine!"

LITERARY FORGERIES.

Stuff With Which Vrain-Lucas Duped
An Aged Scientist.

The most remarkable literary forgery on record was perpetrated in 1870 on Michael Chasles, a French scientist of European reputation. Chasles, who was in his dotage, purchased within a few years from one Vrain-Lucas no fewer than 27,000 autographs. A. M.
Broadley tells the story in his "Chats on Autographs."

"Beginning with a supposed correspondence between the youthful Newton and Pascal, Vrain-Lucas proceeded to fabricate letters of Rabelais, Montesquieu and La Bruyere. Before he had finished M. Chasles became the possessor of letters in French, and written on paper made in France, of Julius Caesar, Cleopatra, Mary Magdalene and even of Lazarus after his resurrection."

Vrain-Lucas was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, and among other forged manuscripts from his pen there were produced in court letters from Alexander the Great, Herod, Pompey,

Only a despatch of importance concerning the explosion which damaged the Sussex was received by the State Department during the day. This contained an affidavit made in London at the American Embassy by two American survivors, Edward S. Huxley and Francis E. Drake, of New York. Both swore that the explosion occurred "without the slightest warning," and they credited the command of the Sussex as saying that he saw the wake of a torpedo before it struck his vessel.

The position of the United States will be decided upon official reports from its own officers. Should either the Sussex or the Englishman have been torpedoed the United States would consider the act to be a most flagrant violation of the rights of humanity, the principles of international law, and the broad assurances regarding the conduct of submarine warfare which have been given by the German Government. There is no evidence, or even a suggestion, that either of the ships were armed, so no defence could be offered on that score.

CONFERENCE OF ALLIES.

Seven Entente Powers Represented at Conclave in Paris.

PARIS, March 28.—The most important conference of the Allies since the outbreak of the war began at Paris yesterday under the Presidency of Premier Briand. The Premiers of Great Britain, Italy, Belgium, and Serbia will participate.

The British Foreign Secretary, Sir Edward Grey; the Secretary for War, Field Marshal Earl Kitchener; and Commander of the Continental Forces General Sir Douglas Haig; the French Commander-in-Chief, General Joffre, and the Italian General Cadorna also have seats at the council table. Russia is represented by the Foreign Minister, M. Iswolsky, and General Gilinsky, aide-de-camp to the Emperor; Japan by the Japanese Ambassador at Paris, and Serbia by Prince Alexander.

Probably nothing will be disclosed concerning the questions under consideration or the decisions reached, but it is expected that the allied powers will come to an agreement respecting common military and political actions.

Soldier Imprisoned in Well.

LONDON, March 28.—A mystery has been disclosed by a little girl, who on peering down into an old, dry thirty-five-foot well on the East-bourne golf links, saw a soldier imprisoned there. The soldier, on being rescued, could walk, but could give no account of himself, not even his name. He had about a week's growth of beard and was covered with mud. He must have lived many days on the water trickling down the side of his cell.

Violent artillery actions took place on both the Argonne and Verdun fronts Saturday, but there were no infantry movements by either the French or German armies. ## AUSTRIA APOLOGETIC.

Newest Levy of Soldiers Has Aroused Widespread Dissatisfaction.

VIENNA, March 28.—The following seeming apology was issued by the War Ministry in publishing the mandate extending the military age to fifty-five years:

"The new measure has been adopted owing to the necessity of calling up the newly-formed Landstrum unit into active service. The measure could under no circumstances have been avoided if the war is to be carried on successfully, and this urgent necessity justifies the new sacrifices demanded of the public. The new extension order is being carried out under most precise rules in order to consider the personal interest of those concerned, and to insure the sacrifices being borne in the same degree by all."

The last sentence is of interest under the circumstances, for originally the extension was designed to affect only the peasantry and the working classes, and not the middle class or merchant population. The dissatisfaction was the greatest on account of this undemocratic aspect of the scheme.

JEWELLED BOOKS.

Ancient Volumes Bound in Gold and Incrusted With Gems.

Bibliophiles will tell you that the bookbinding of the ancients has never been equaled, let alone surpassed. They will extol the beauties of the bindings of the Byzantine period, when books had covers of gold, silver and copper studded with jewels, the massive tomes being carried in imperial processions.

The books produced in the middle ages were of remarkable beauty in wardly and outwardly. Religious manuscripts were enriched with illuminations themselves, while their covers were of silver, gold or enamel, incrustated with gems. These books were generally bestowed as splendid gifts by bishops and princes on monastic houses and churches, where they were laid on the altar or chained to a desk.

The dukes of Burgundy were renowned for their libraries. The "Bocaccio" of Charles the Bold was bound in red velvet set with five large rubies. Another Burgundian book was velvet bound and set with fifty-eight pearls of great size.

The library of Philip the Good of Burgundy surpassed all other book collections of the time. It contained nearly 10,000 volumes, all richly illuminated on vellum, with bindings of damask, satin and velvet, incrustated with jewels, with clasps of gold and gems.—Pearson's Weekly.

Battlecry of the Cat.

The piercing warcry of the cat in the night startles and exasperates us beyond all bearing—not by its loudness, but by a certain vicious, weird, half terrifying, half infuriating note in it that makes us spring to arms with the bootjack or other substitute for the boomerang, as the warwhoop of our tribal enemies did a century or centuries ago, says Dr. Woods Hutchinson.

One of Mark Twain's wise old frontiersmen had caught this note when he explained to the tenderfoot that animal speech had rules of composition and grammar, just like human speech, and that "the reason a cat riles ye so ain't on account of the noise she makes, but on account of the sickening bad grammar she uses." And he was right, for the grammar of scarp lifting and the whole alphabet of battle, murder and sudden death tingles and screams in the rasping cry.

The Weather Changeth Not.

The oldest weather diary known to be in existence was kept by a Lincolnshire parson, William Merle, close on 600 years ago. From 1337 to 1344 he wrote it up, often day by day, in Latin, and his manuscript, being on vellum, was somehow preserved and is now in the Bodleian. Merle did not trouble himself with the popular lore about "skyeey influences," but stuck to an accurate record of fact, in the spirit at least of the modern meteorologists. And from his jottings it seems that he had pretty much the same kind of weather to deal with as toils in his parish of Frilby experience now. Contrary to theory, the changes of six centuries have not reduced the number of wet days in the year.—London Chronicle.

Vanilla Beans.

The vanilla bean is the costliest bean in the world. It flourishes in Mexico, chiefly in Papantla and Misantla. It grows wild and is gathered and marketed by the natives. Just as they come from the forests the beans sell at $10 per 1,000. After the beans are dried and cured they are worth from $10 to $11 a pound, according to quality. They are used by druggists and confectioners and are an important article of commerce.

GOVERNMENT BRINGS UP RESERVES

Major General Sam's retreat in the face of the enemy has the effect of prolonging the battle over the Shell Committee. His friends confidently expected that the Major General would remain to hurl back the Carvell charges, so when Sir Sam beat it to England via Palm Beach it naturally threw their arrangements out. The reserves consisting of R. B. Bennett and Arthur Meighen, were brought up hurriedly and they made rather a mess of it.

As a matter of fact Major General Sam's retreat was a stroke of strategy. He could not hurl back the Carvell charges because he had done all his hurling in reply to Mr. Carvell's first attack some weeks ago and the hurling wasn't as good as it used to be. Colonel Carvell kept pulling new stuff all the time and as the Major General didn't know where he got it or what else he might have up his sleeve he concluded that the time had arrived for withdrawing, which he did accordingly. This, in itself, proves that Sir Sam is one of the greatest commanders of all time. He knows when discretion is the better part of valor—he has the moral courage to run away when necessary. Napoleon wasted his whole life without learning this useful lesson.

The Major General may or may not have paused in his masterly flight to confer with Colonel John Wesley Allison who makes the United States his headquarters and who never by any chance comes north of the 49th parallel when the Public Accounts Committee happens to be meeting. The chances are that he did so pause, and that Colonel John Wesley Allison has been fully instructed by his superior officer how to save more money for Canada and Great Britain during the Major General's absence. Colonel John Wesley Allison has a method all his own of saving money for the British Empire—he does it by peddling contracts at fat prices to United States ammunition companies in which he has a fatherly interest. He does not accept commissions—for Canadian business—but he has been known to accept presents, from the Colt's revolver people for instance, for orders at large, so to speak. The Colonel has his code of honour and sticks to it—if he swallows these insults in the form of cash, he does it for love of country and Major General Sam. When a man is in the business of saving millions, as the Colonel is, it is only natural that he should save a few for himself.

With the Major General out of the country it is not likely that Parliament will clap eyes on Colonel John Wesley Allison this session. The Colonel is also a military man, though an honorary one, and understands quite as well as his Major General that discretion is the better part of valor. To put in an appearance now would be a sin against good tactics. Meanwhile, if Parliament can't see Colonel John Wesley Allison it would like to see his picture. If it can't lay hands on him bodily, it would like to glimpse his features, his counterfeit presentment, as it were, with the accent on the counterfeit. Fancy hims him prophecy leaves him room to make another break if he doesn't get what he deserves in the way of cabinet honors pretty soon. Just now R. B. is a great pet. Sooner than lose sight of him for a minute, Premier Borden takes him everywhere. But who knows how long a grand passion like that will last? Consequently, R. B. leaves himself free to lift veils, as he did on the C.N.R.—if and when necessary. Moreover, I suspect he was taking a rise out of Sir Sam when he argued that a "man with a calmer mind" might have accomplished much less than the Major General. Which means that Sir Sam was a great success because he was half crazy. So far no Liberal has dared to say this,—but R. B. puts it rather well, don't you think?

Dr. Pugsley dealt playfully with R. B.'s soap bubbles—dealt playfully with them, but poked his finger through them at the same time, especially with his plea to suspend judgment until after the war, lest the Empire be endangered. If the Empire was not endangered by the inquiry into shoes, horses, binoculars, bandages, etc., how could it be endangered by an inquiry into the actions of the Shell Committee? It is only fair to say that Dr. Pugsley's question has not been answered yet, and will not be for one very good reason—the right answer is not available, and the Government has to do a little stalling.

For the rest, Dr. Pugsley took up Premier Borden's challenge. He made definite charges against the Shell Committee and the Minister of Militia. These charges he put in good tight legal English, with the idea of watching the Government squirm. This pleasure was his later on when Arthur Meighen did the squirming with his well-known skill and a long black coat. Dr. Pugsley's charges give the public in round numbers $122,000,000 to chew on—$80,000,000 overpaid by the Shell Committee to itself and friends, and a $22,000,000 contract handed out to the American Ammunition Company, one of Colonel J. Wesley Allison's pets, for time fuses which have not yet been delivered. The consequence of this delay in battles lost and soldiers slain, is too horrible to contemplate.

Dr. Pugsley did another good piece of work in riveting the evidence which links Sir Sam up with the Shell Committee, and makes the Canadian Government a partner of the British Government in the purchase of supplies for the joint use of Canadian and British troops at the front. He made a neat lawyer-like job of it. When the case goes to the jury—which will not be until after the war, if then, such being Premier Borden's last word—Parliament will find in this speech of Dr. Pugsley's all the facts needed to nail the Borden Government down.

Not the least part of the evidence is Sir Sam's own words in which he declared himself the father of the Shell Committee, and his intention of sticking to it as long as it "has a button on its jacket." This you will see, as Dr. Pugsley pointed out, that the Shell Committee was Sam's baby. His war baby, by the same token. The poor little thing, having overfed itself to the extent of $80,000,000, died in convulsions, while two Lloyd-George doctors from England helped it along.

KING OF URBAN TREES.

Qualities That Adapt the Elm to Architectural Surroundings.

The elm is essentially a self sufficient tree. It does not thrive in groves. It has a standard type of its own, and it either attains this type or is lost to view. The elm which comes to maturity is usually the one which has lodged in a favored spot where there is no competition, such as a river meadow, where the spring freshets have dropped the seed on fertile soil and the roots can get down to water.

We all know the type, the noble trunk of massive girth tapering very gradually upward to the first spring of branches and then dissolving into those branches as a water jet might dissolve in many upward and out curving streams till the whole is lost in the spray of the foliage. Like many other trees that grow alone, it develops an exquisite symmetry. But with the elm this symmetry is not only one of general contour, but of individual limbs. Not only is the silhouette symmetrical, but the skeleton also, branch balancing branch.

That is what gives it its remarkable fitness to comport with architectural lines, with geometrically designed vistas. It has a formal structure and a consequent dignity which make it the logical shade for a village street, a chapel, a library, the scholarly procession in cap and gown. Add to that dignity its arched and airy lightness and its splendid size and you have the king of urban trees.—Walter Prichard Eaton in Century.

A LUCKY STONE.

Maybe the Part It Played Was Merely That of Coincidence.

In his book, "The Magic of Jewels and Charms," George F. Kunz relates this little story of a lucky stone and the adventures of its owners:

"Some years ago a meteorite was given to Edward Heron Allen, the famous writer on palmistry and the violin, and this gifted man always wore it about him. One morning he awakened to find that the entire roof above him had fallen in, except just that portion over his bed.

"He told the story to one of the best known ladies in Boston, one who is known for her public spirit, her love of art and her faultless manner of entertaining. This lady successfully urged Allen to give her the meteorite.

"A few days later, while out driving, a great truck with two runaway horses attached to it struck her carriage. Instinctively she raised her muff to protect her face. The muff was almost cut in two, but the lady was not hurt. A few days later, while she was walking under some scaffolding, it fell, and the open part where the hoists went up proved to be just where she stood. Although surrounded by ruin, she remained unharmed."

Whether the stone was a factor in averting disaster to its owners in their moments of peril is, however, a matter apart from the facts in the case.

Disastrous Results.

It is a fact that a submarine did actual service in the war, the states and was perhaps practical submarine used warfare.

The boat was built in Mob by two men named Hundle; Clintock. It was of boiler iron at both ends and was about long, five or six feet in beam or six feet deep. It was propelled by a screw, the shaft of which ran longitudinally along the hold, from stern to stern and was turned by men, who sat four on each side of the shaft.

The only hatchway, placed forward, was two feet in diameter, was closed by an iron cap that on a hinge and was airtight forward part of the cap that clear glass bullseye, through which the pilot could see. The boat was divided into compartments, by filling in which it could sink or rise. The last of iron rails was placed at the stern, and by means of keys it could be detached so that the boat could instantly if necessary.

Besides a rudder, the boat had paddles, or fins, which could be detached so that the boat could be guided up or down through the water.

The boat could go perhaps an hour. It could remain submerged for half an hour or an hour, but serious inconvenience to its crew once it remained as long as under water without actual tests.

A floating torpedo was fitted to the boat by a line 100 feet long. The inventor proposed that the boat should dive beneath the enemy's vessel and haul it up after her. The triggers or primers of the torpedo were attached to the ship's bottom, and the torpedo would sink the vessel.

The boat was sent to Chesapeake Bay to operate against the blockade runner General Beauregard had taken. It was fastened to the bow. The front with a sharp lance beam when the boat was driven into the ship below the waterline the torpedo fastened against the hull. The boat was then to explode the torpedo by a lanyard. General Beauregard called the boat a "torpedo boat." Lieutenant Payne, a Virginian, volunteered. Eight sailors volunteered. On the morning of the expedition had embarked, and the boat merged until only the comb-on him bodily, it would like to glimpse his features, his counterfeit presentment, as it were, with the accent on the counterfeit. Fancy him in various ways but always with long white hair, shiny forehead, and a heavenward gaze as befits his two first names. What does this other half of Sir Sam's soul, this expatriated lover of the British Empire look like? A man who goes about saving millions for nothing but exercise and the love of humanity is worth knowing. The Colonel ought to pay a visit to Canada and see the reception he gets. It will give him a jolt, or I lose my bet.

Major General Sam left his rear guard in the hands of R. B. Bennett, who, having no ammunition in the way of argument or facts, naturally made a gas attack. The member for Calgary gave vent to a number of beautiful sentiments, hoping that Major General Sam would be able to get away while the noise was going on. He spoke, as I remember, of Themoplae, of our own heroes at the front, of the sob of the mother overseas, asked for our tears, wept in our ears, worked the pump good and plenty, but by no chance answered the Carvell charges. What Mr. Carvell said, was in substance, "somebody is grafting," to which Mr. Bennett replied "what glorious sunsets we are having!" or words to that effect. This is known in military circles as creating a diversion, and it must be admitted that as a diversion creator, Colonel Richard Bedford Bennett is a lollapalooza.

In the course of a two hours speech R. B. wove garlands for all the Cabinet Ministers, twined a laurel wreath for Sir Sam, gilded the old Shell Committee as a body of misunderstood patriots, gave the British Empire his unqualified approval, took the muse of history by the hand and told her what to write, slapped Destiny on the wrist, mentioned his U.E. L. ancestors once or twice, gave details of a sentimental journey he made with Premier Borden through the British War Office, described his emotions on visiting the trenches, and wound up with a peroration that soared into the empyrean, and crowded the firmament with jewelled rhetoric.

But when all was said and done, R. B. never got down to cases. It was all wind, not because R. B. likes wind, he is getting more and more out of the habit, but because there was nothing but wind to work on. It's pretty tough on a rising young Statesman, after he thinks he's got rid of the old camp meeting style he brought with him from the prairies and has built up a reputation for close reasoning and crisp utterances—it's pretty tough on R. B., I repeat, to be asked to go back to the vacuum cleaner stuff again. But that was R. B.'s job and he had to go through with it.

Still, R. B. let himself out in one or two places. He refused to sacrifice his reputation as a man of common sense entirely. There was subtle irony in his argument that the great Duke of Marlborough was a grafter who was never investigated—at least while the war was on. The Shell Committee may take what change they can out of that. R. B. also added a touch of prophecy to the effect that reputations would fall and veils be lifted after the war, which proved that however he might be trying to draw the wool over other people's eyes, he wasn't drawing it over his own. Incidentally, R. B.'s touch of George doctors from England helped it along.

DRY CLEANING AT HOME.

A Mixture That Is Said to Do the Work Easily and Harmlessly.

Make a stock solution of eight ounces strong ammonia, half an ounce of chloroform and half an ounce of ether. Cork tightly and keep away from the face, says the Scientific American. Dissolve a bar of naphtha soap in three gallons of hot water, add half a teaspoonful each of baking soda, salt and alum and three tablespoonfuls of the ammonia-chloroform-ether mixture.

To clean oriental or other rugs to their original brightness make a lather and dip a scrub brush in it, shaking out superfluous water. Go over the rug with this brush, and the lather dries out almost immediately. No harm whatever is done to the best oriental rug.

To sponge spots from clothing, even delicate silk and upholstery, dip a soft sponge in the lather, wring as dry as possible and sponge off the spot.

To wash sweaters, blankets or other flannels let the mixture become nearly cold, soak the garments in it half an hour or less, squeeze dry, rinse in clear water, squeeze dry again and hang up.

The various ingredients used not only remove grease and dirt, but set and brighten colors.

No Eye For Color.

Apocryphal of the amusing comments on academic costume that so often reveal popular ignorance of the symbolism of hoods and gowns is the following story, told by a contributor to the Liverpool Post:

A friend of mine, says he, is a curate in a local suburban parish. Some little time back he went up to Oxford to take his master of arts degree and the following Sunday appeared in the pulpit resplendent in his new master of arts hood. A few nights later he was dining in the house of a prominent parishioner and was amazed to hear his hostess pleasantly remark:

"Mr. X., that new hood of yours doesn't suit you at all. I can't imagine why you, with your complexion, those red of all colors in the world. A myrtle green or an old gold would have suited you much better and would have been far more effective. You men never know how to dress yourselves!"

When the Plague Raged.

Sir Walter Besant in one of his books says of the author of "Robinson Crusoe" and "Journal of the Plague:" "De Foe was born in the year 1661. His father lived in Cripplegate, where, as we know, he had a shop. The child, therefore, was four years of age in the plague year. A child of four observes a great deal and may remember a great deal. De Foe says: 'When any one bought a joint of meat he would not take it out of the butcher's hand, but took it off the books himself. On the other hand, the butcher would not touch the money, but put it into a pot full of vinegar which he kept for the purpose.' This must surely have been seen by the child and remembered. It happened in his father's shop before his eyes."

Do not light the first cigar less than half an hour after breakfast. The more difficult this delay may be the more need there is for a cure. The remainder of the day smoke the same as usual. It is only the first cigar with which we are dealing. Keep this up for a week, then lengthen the interval to an hour for another week, then make it one and a half hours, two, two and a half, and so on. If you have an "all gone" sensation, a longing for something, eat an orange or apple or almost any kind of fruit, but don't smoke until the time is up. The nerves, being deprived of their morning stimulant, are crying for nourishment, which nature is hastening to supply through increased appetite to supply digestion. By the time the first cigar is entirely eliminated the cure is effected with no serious derangement of the heart or digestive apparatus.—Exchange.

Lost His Bearings.

It was an English skipper of the olden time who, having knowledge beyond the seeming needs, as he could read and use the charts, was dispatched to Rotterdam. The skipper had never been to Rotterdam before, so after getting over the bar and well away to the east he produced his charts and made a learned inspection, but the charts had been a long time in the locker and circumstances combined to alarm him extremely. He went up on deck and called to his mate, "Put her about; the rats have eaten Holland!"

Window Glass.

It is certain that there were glass windows in Pompeii, as the proof is found in its ruins. In more modern times it is known that windows of some kind were glazed so early as the third century, if not before, though the fashion was not fairly introduced until it was done by Benedict Biscop about 674. Windows of glass were used in private houses in Italy as early as 1177.—Exchange.

Turk Post on the Tigris Captured.

LONDON, March 28.—An official report of yesterday says:

"Our forces on the right bank of the Tigris seized a small Turkish post at Falahiyeh by a surprise attack on the night of March 15-16. Our casualties were four.

"On March 23 General Townshend reported his camp at Kut-el-Amara bombarded by enemy aircraft and guns at intervals on March 21-23. His casualties were slight. The general situation is unchanged."

Good Progress in the Caucasus.

PETROGRAD, March 28.—In the region of the Upper Tchornuk River, in the Caucasus region, Russian detachments are making good progress, dislodging the Turks from heights which were defended by several superimposed lines of trenches. Russian troops also have advanced considerably in the region south-eastward of Bitlis, in the Lake Van region of Asiatic Turkey.

Napoleon on Horseback.

Extraordinary were the precautions taken that Napoleon should never appear at a disadvantage on horseback.
The emperor was not a first class horseman, and his horses were always thoroughly broken in. Here is a description of the methods employed:
"They were trained to remain perfectly steady under tortures of every description; to receive blows about the head; drums were beaten, pistols and crackers fired in their ears, flags waved before their eyes, clumsy packages and sometimes even sheep and pigs were thrown between their legs.
None of the animals were deemed sufficiently trained till the emperor could without the least difficulty pull them up short at full gallop, which was his favorite pace."—London Chronicle.

Climbing Down.

Macarty applied for a job as a builder's laborer and was asked by the foreman what experience he had. "Sure," said the applicant, "ye don't need any experience for hard work at all, at all."
"Oh, but I want to know," said the foreman, "if you've been used to going up a ladder." "That's all right," replied Jerry; "you'll have nothing to complain about. Sure Oi can moind

A Great Chess Player.

Sir Walter Parratt had an extraordinary memory. Some eight or ten men were assembled one evening in one of the lodges attached to St. Michael's college, Tenbury. Sir Walter Parratt and Herr von Holst played in turn upon the piano such music as was asked for. This went on for some time until at last the chessboard was brought out. Sir Walter then proposed to play two men at chess in consultation, still remaining at the piano and playing from memory what was demanded either from Bach, Beethoven, Mozart, Chopin or Mendelssohn. Without even a glance at the chessboard he won the game in an hour.—London

Pretty Compliment.

In Princeton one day a girl was dash-out.

"Oh, dear!" she cried to a passerby, who happened to be Woodrow Wilson.
"Is that the 5 o'clock train?"

"Yes, I'm afraid it is," he answered.
"Then," she exclaimed in despair,
"I've missed it!"

"No, no," said Mr. Wilson, bowing and smiling gallantly. "No, no. It would be much better to say that the train has missed you."

Nashville, Tenn.—"When I was going child's head. The doctor said it was three years coming and gave me medi-

some time. Of course I could not go to him then, so my sister-in-law told me that she thought

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com-

the Change of Life and the tumor and when I got home I did not need the doctor.
I took the Pinkham remedies until the tumor was gone, the doctor said, and I have not felt it since. I tell every one how I was cured. If this letter will help others you are welcome to use it."

CURIOUS JAPANESE RITE.

The Art of Divination Through the Use of Tortoise Shell.

The curious art of divination through the medium of tortoise shell is very popular throughout the island kingdom, being used upon many occasions to ascertain the timeliness or possibility of various projects. The importance of this practice in the eyes of the Japanese may be inferred from the fact that the fields in which the sacred rice for the coronation ceremony was grown were selected through tortoise shell divination.

The divination is effected by first worshipping a god called Uravanokami.
Then a tortoise shell is taken and scraped inside until quite thin and the outside surface polished. In the shell are several hollow squares in each of which there is a certain sign marked in black ink. The whole is then baked under great heat, causing cracks to appear in the surface. These cracks are then studied in accordance with the formulae in the divination book, the result being a sort of code message from the gods.

This is not the earliest form of divination known in Japan. Previously there was a kind called Futomani, in which the shoulder blade of a stag was used in place of a tortoise shell. The tortoise shell method, which probably came from China, was considered an improvement and was probably adopt-

Heavy Returns.

"What business brings the heaviest returns?" asked the man who wanted to know.

"The literary business," sighed the struggling author as he opened a two pound rejected book manuscript.

Henry VIII. and Puddings.

Bluff King Hal, otherwise Henry VIII. of England, was exceedingly fond of puddings. At one time he gave a certain Mrs. Cornwallis a house in Aldgate for herself and her heirs forever "in reward of fine puddings." In King Henry VIII.'s private accounts occur again and again entries of his rewards to different housewives for bringing him puddings. A typical instance runs thus: "Item. The same day paid to the wife that made the king podings at Hampton corte, vis. vijld." This would be about $1.75, but its value was much greater when the entry was made.

A Thornless Rose.

The followers of Zoroaster have a theory, that prior to the existence of sin in the world the rose was a thornless flower. In the east it is a tradition to this day that the burning bush in which the angel of the Lord appeared to Moses was a rosebush.

Living In Luxury.

"Now that she is rich, I suppose she has everything."

"Everything; even has a trained nurse to help her nurse a grouch."

Modest.

"Do you think the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world?"

"Sometimes," replied Mr. Meekton; "but not when Henrietta goes down-town and leaves me to look after the house."

Reason For It.

"Here's a writer says that it's the rich and the aristocratic who are the worst gossips."

"On the principle, perhaps, that 'money talks' and 'blood will tell.'"

Natural Result.

"What do you suppose will happen when women are elected to our congress?"

"Then every woman member of the house will want to be speaker."

MISFORTUNES.

Bear your own misfortunes with half the resignation that you bear other people's and you will be happy. It is so easy to tell other people how to be heroic and so difficult to be courageous ourselves.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice heavy steers, $8.25 to $8.65; choice butchers' cattle at $5 to $8.25; good butchers, $7.75 to $8; medium butchers, $7.40 to $7.65; common butchers, $6.55 to $7; choice cows, $6.75 to $7; good cows, $6.25 to $6.50; medium cows, $5.50 to $5.85; common cows, $5 to $5.50; canners and cutters, $4 to $4.50; choice bulls, $7 to $7.25; good bulls, $6.50 to $6.75; common bulls, $5.25 to $5.75.

Stockers and Feeders.

Choice feeders, 800 to 950 lbs., at $7.25 to $7.50; stockers, 700 to 800 lbs., at $6.75 to $7; yearlings of good quality and color at $6.50 to $6.75.

Milkers and Springers.

Choice milkers and springers at $85 to $100; good cows at $65 to $75; common cows at $50 to $60.

Veal Calves.

Choice veal calves, $10.50 to $11.50; good calves, $9 to $10; medium, $8 to $9; common, $4.50 to $6; heavy fat calves, $6.50 to $7.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Light sheep sold at $9 to $10.25; heavy sheep at $7 to $8; culls at $6 to $6.50; choice lambs at $11.50 to $13.25; cull lambs at $9 to $10; spring lambs, $10 to $11.50 each.

Hogs.

Selects, weighed off cars, $10.90; $10.50, fed and watered; $10.15 f.o.b. cars. For heavy, fat, thin, light hogs, 50c per cwt. will be deducted; $2.50 off for sows; $4 off for stags from prices paid for selects; half of one per cent. off all hogs for inspection.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, March 27.—At the C. P. R. livestock market, steers, heifers and cows were firm because supplies were not in excess of requirements.

Sales of full loads of choice steers were made at $8 to $8.25 and small picked lots as high as $8.55 to $8.50 per cwt.

Owing to the reaction in prices for hogs of 15c to 50c per cwt. in the Toronto market at the latter end of the week, coupled with the smaller supplies available here today, there was no important change in the situation, prices being firm with a good demand from packers, selected selling at $11.25 to $11.50, sows at $9.25 to $9.50, and stags at $5.62½ to $5.75 per cwt. off cars. There were no spring lambs on the market, for which the demand was good, and as high as $12.50 per cwt. asked, but the bulk of sales were made at $11.75 to $12. Sheep were firm.

Calves were steady. Milk fed sold at 8c to 8½c per lb., and the common stock brought $2 to $5 each.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $8 to $8.25; do. medium, $7 to $7.75; do. common, $5.50 to $6.50; canners, $4.25 to $5; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $6.75 to $7; do. medium, $5.75 to $6.50; do. bulls, $6.25 to $7.75; milkers, choice, each, $30 to $35; do. common and medium, each, $70 to $75; springers, $65 to $75; sheep, ewes, $8 to $8.50; bucks and culls, $7.50 to $7.75; lambs, $11.75 to $12; hogs, f.o.b. off cars, $11.25 to $11.50.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, March 27.—Cattle.—Receipts 3800 head; active; prime steers, $9.35 to $9.60; shipping, $8.40 to $9.25; butchers, $7.25 to $8.85; heifers, $6.75 to $8.50; cows, $4 to $7.50; bulls, $5 to $7.60; stock heifers, $5.75 to $6.70; stockers and feeders, $6 to $7.25; fresh cows and springers, active and strong, $50 to $100.

Veals.—Receipts 1500 head; slow, $4 to $10.50. Hogs.—Receipts 14,000 head; slow; heavy, $10.45 to $10.55; mixed, $10.25; Yorkers, $9.50 to $10.25; pigs, $9 to $9.25; roughs, $8.25 to $9.55; stags, $6.50 to $7.75. Sheep and lambs.—Receipts 8000 head; active, lambs, $8 to $11.90; yearlings, $6.50 to $10.50; wethers, $9 to $9.50; ewes, $4 to $6.75; sheep, mixed, $8.75 to $9.

OLD TIME WITCH FINDERS.

Sure Signs by Which Agents of the Evil One Were Detected.

Three hundred years ago the business of finding out witches was well established and accepted in courts of law as highly proper.

In 1649 it is recorded that the magistrates of Newcastle, England, sent to Scotland for an expert witch finder. This gifted person proceeded to show his skill by quickly discovering fifteen witches and securing their conviction. One Matthew Hopkins was a celebrated witch finder of that period.

It was easy to discover witches when you knew how. The suspected person could be forced to weep and then detected by the well known fact that a witch could shed only three tears and those from the left eye, or she could be pricked with pins to discover the spot insensible to pain, which was a sure sign of dealings with the devil.

That women were far more likely to dabble in witchcraft than men was conceded. The reason was satisfactorily explained by a famous German text book on witches published in the fifteenth century. It was simply that women were inherently wicked, whereas men naturally inclined to goodness.—Exchange.

The Czar Bell.

One of the best known bells in the world has, strange to say, never been rung—that known as the Czar Kolokol, or the czar bell. This bell is said to be the largest anywhere. There is an interesting history attached to it. When it had been cast attempt was made to hang it so that it might be rung, but by an unhappy chance it broke from its supports and fell to the ground, wherein it made a great hole, into which it sank and lay for many years. Finally, after more than a hundred years of oblivion, it was raised and placed in a public square in Moscow, where it now stands. This bell weighs more than 440,000 pounds and is more than nineteen feet in height and sixty feet in circumference.

Turk Evacuating Konieh, Asia Minor

LONDON, March 28.—An Athens report received by Reuters says that the Turks have ordered the evacuation of Konieh, in Asia Minor.

Konieh is in Anatolia, about 175 miles north-east of Adana, and is on the railway running from Constantinople to Adana.

A despatch from London March 13 quoted Athens advices as saying that the populations of Konieh, Brussa, and other cities in Asia Minor had addressed memorials to the Turkish heir apparent begging him to urge upon the Sultan the necessity to change the present Government in order to prepare the war for a conclusion with the Entente Powers.

A BOY AND HIS FUTURE.

The Serious Matter of the Selection of a Suitable Career.

Given a basis of good character, good health and thoroughness, the choice of life work is the next great influence upon a boy. Many parents foredoom their son to failure by trying to force him to gratify their ambitions in a calling for which he has neither interest nor ability instead of helping him to develop his own individuality.

The false idea that there is social distinction in certain professions is the basis of many failures that might have been successes in other callings.

Wherever we look we see failures, many of whom were men of undoubted ability, whose talents were misdirected. You whose sons have their future all before them can guard against shipwreck by studying their taste, directing their abilities and discussing with them the problem of their future. If you cannot afford to see them through a long term of training for some profession discuss the matter freely so that they will appreciate the necessity of turning their interest into other channels—unless they can work their way through their training without impairment of health.—Isaac Dedham in Mother's Magazine.

The Glare of Light.

Persons who shrink from the glare of light, as distinguished from those who shrink from light itself, suffer from what Dr. Ernest Clarke calls photoangiophobia. It is due to deficiency in the pigment of the retina and is especially marked in albinos. Sir William Crookes invented a glass that cuts off the infra red as well as the ultra violet rays, which cause the trouble.

The Medical Record says that any one with a tendency to shrink from the glare should be careful to shade his eyes with a suitable cap, should work or read with well shaded lights; his desk should never face a window, and his apartments should be decorated in cool neutral tints, dull sage green being the best.

The Zadruga of Servia.

Those who know Servia well declare that the economic system known as the zadruga has saved the Serbs from the ills of poverty and all that flows from it. It is a glorified family. From one house others grow, as the family grows by marriage, until a little community is established on something like Socialistic principles. The stareshina (headman) and his wife live in the biggest house and direct the industries of the satellite houses. Anxiety as to bread and butter being eliminated, the Servian has become one of the gayest of the races of mankind.—London Graphic.

When Cricket Was a Crime.

Under a statute of Edward IV. England's great national pastime, cricket, was declared a crime, owing to the game having become so popular that it interfered with archery, the then sport of kings. The law was rigorously enforced, and every person convicted of playing the game was fined £10 and sent to prison besides. It was not until the formation of the famous

Surplus of Officers Problem For

OTTAWA, March 27.—questions which Gen. Sir F. will take up with the British authorities in Great Britain disposal of the large number of Canadian officers now trained in the old country.

When the big push spring, as it is expected it will be heavy fighting and heavy casualties among the officers. A large number will then likely be required.

The remainder will probably be sent to Canada and given commissions in new overseas battalions as instructors at the camps.

The question of promotion in the ranks will be taken up later while in England. Intention to promote many gone thru heavy fighting as much as possible.

But one trouble is that often object to leave the one which they have been so used. They prefer to remain in the ranks rather than commissions in battalions home.

alyze, separate or judge. So the critic came to be one who had been set apart or judged worthy to plead a cause or present an argument. At one stage of his evolution the critic was a person who recited the works of the great dramatists. He was an actor—who did not act. The gestures were supplied by a man trained for that purpose, who went through a sort of pantomime, while the real interpreter of the part gave the melodiously intoned words.

The pantomime artist was a "hypocrite" because he played an under part to the "critic." Later, when the speaking and acting were done by the same person, he was called the "hypocrite." Now any one who plays a part not his own is practicing hypocrisy.

ANCIENT MEALTIMES.

When They Rose at 5, Dined at 9 and Supped at 5.

The change in mealtimes is evidenced by the old rhyme:

To rise at five and dine at nine,
To sup at five and bed at nine,
Will make a man live to ninety-nine.

But one suspected that the change is in the names of the meals rather than in the hours. Our ancestors would have termed our luncheon dinner and our dinner supper. It is a curious fact that in some of the Oxford colleges, where the founders made allowances for the meals of the students, a much larger sum is allotted for supper than for dinner, implying that the former was the more substantial meal. Taken at 5 or 6 o'clock, it was really "early dinner."

Some particulars of the mealtimes of our ancestors may be found in William Harrison's "Description of England," published in 1587:

"With us the nobility, gentry and students do ordinarily go to dinner at 11 before noon and to supper at 5 or between 5 and 6 at afternoon. The merchants dine and sup seldom before 12 at noon and 6 at night, especially in London. The husbandmen dine also at high noon, as they call it, and sup at 7 or 8, but out of the term in our universities the scholars dine at 10. As for the poorest sort, they generally dine and sup when they may, so that to talk of their order of repast it were but a needless matter."—London Chronicle.

Melbourne, a City That Planned.

There is and always has been a great amount of public spirit in Melbourne, due, in large part, to the Scotch element that has predominated from the beginning. "The first citizens, led by Scots, as a rule, set to work with magnificent faith in the future. A city was planned worthy of being the capital of 10,000,000 people, and the public buildings were designed on the same generous scale. The soil on the site was deep and rich. That suggested tree planting, and most of the streets are today relieved by handsome foliage, and the parks which ring the city round have trees worthy of the forests of Europe. The avenue of elms in Fitzroy gardens certainly represents that tree at its best.—Bishop E. E. Hoss

ALLIES PLAN BIG COUP TO FINISH WAR SOON

PARIS, March 27.—Vast plans for which the entente powers hope to end the war before the end of the present year are being made by the grand allied council of war which began here to-day. The first session was opened at the foreign office at 10 o'clock, with representatives of France, Britain, Russia, Italy, Belgium, Serbia and Japan present. Britain is represented by Premier Asquith, Sir Edward Grey, the foreign minister; Lord Kitchener, secretary of state for war; Gen. Sir Douglas Haig, commander of the British forces on the continent, and Gen. Robertson, chief of the British general staff.

No previous meeting has been of such grave import or has been attended by such a representation of world figures in war and diplomacy.

The subject of the first sitting is the military situation. That is all which may be said definitely, but it is probable that Gen. Joffre, Earl Kitchener, Gen. Sir Douglas Haig, Lieut.-Gen. Count Cadorna, Gen. Castelnau and Gen. Roques, the new French war minister, addressed the conference.

BRITAIN'S PLEDGE.

England, it is said, has pledged herself to furnish money to any of the allied countries likely to be hampered by lack of funds in preparing for a general offensive.

A member of one of the parliamentary commissions—which, exercising parliamentary control by frequent visits of supervision to the front, play an important part in the direction of the war—explains the official view of the allied conference which will open to-day:

"This week is perhaps the most important in the history of Europe as marking the inception of a homogeneous program of the entente coalition. Henceforth the allies will have a single policy not only in military operations, but diplomatically, politically and economically.

"No more auspicious moment could be chosen. As the Verdun failure denotes the end of the German offensive and is the turning point of the war, so this conference is the real beginning of the allies' united offensive, which, in closest collaboration along lines laid down after mature consideration, will end only with Germany's downfall."

Tubantia Clearly Sunk By a German Torpedo

AMSTERDAM, March 27.—(Via London)—The Handelsblad says that an expert investigation proves conclusively that the Dutch liner Tubantia was sunk by a torpedo with a bronze air chamber, which is found only in the Schwartzkopf torpedoes made in Berlin. The torpedoes used in the British and French navy, the newspaper says, have steel air chambers. One of the experts suggests that the Tubantia might have been torpedoed by a small German torpedo boat, whose station is Ostend.

The Handelsblad urges Holland to join the United States in demanding of Germany that she will not torpedo merchantmen without a preliminary

Huge Hun Submarine Off Norwegian Coast

COPENHAGEN, via London, March 17.—A German submarine, says the Christiania correspondent of The Politiken, bigger and speedier than any submarine previously seen and carrying a crew of eighty, has appeared off Utsire, on the southwest coast of Norway. The captain sent a wireless message that he had torpedoed the Norwegian barque Lindfield, on March 17, and had taken the crew of thirty on the submarine, where he kept them for four days and then transferred them to the Norwegian barque Silas.

Severely Criticizes Battalion's Officers

KINGSTON, March 27.—The officers of the 146th Battalion were severely criticized at the Salvation Army Citadel by Ensign Smith. His criticism was over the band of the battalion being ordered to parade up and down Princess street Saturday night for the purpose of advertising the assault-arms in the city hall. As the band of the 146th has some 24 Salvationists in it, Ensign Smith stated that it was not right for the officers to order these men to parade the streets advertising a "fight."

Scandinavian Shipping Has Suffered Heavily

COPENHAGEN, March 27.—Ninety-six Norwegian ships have been lost during the war thru submarines or otherwise, according to a newspaper statement published here. It has been established, says the statement, that 20 Norwegian steamers have been destroyed by German submarines, 77 Norwegian subjects thereby losing their lives. But Germany has compensated Norway for only four steamers.

The total Norwegian tonnage lost amounts to 125,000, valued at 28,000,000 kroner, while the cargoes were valued at 90,000,000 kroner.

In addition, German prize courts have seized a large number of Norwegian vessels.

Sweden, in the same way, has lost 40 vessels, of a tonnage of 50,000, valued at 10,000,000 kroner. One hundred and twenty-eight Swedes have

One Million Seven Hundred and Twenty-four Thousand Dollars for New Buildings in Canada Since the War Began WHY ?

Is Canada prosperous ?

Are we justified in having the courage and confidence to put on full speed ahead in our business activities ?

The experience of the Canadian Ford Company since that never-to-be-forgotten Aug. 1, 1914, indicates that courage and confidence should be away above par, that we are fully justified in casting aside anxiety and putting our full energy into an aggressive and progressive business policy.

It was some time before the outbreak of war that the Ford Canadian Company decided on an extremely broad policy of expansion.

If the demand for Ford cars should increase in the way that it had every indication of doing, then new buildings would have to be started at once to enable the company to meet this demand.

When war came the Ford Canadian executives saw no reason to change their plans—their confidence in Canada's prosperity never wavered.

So work was begun on a new building at Ford City, costing $452,000. This is used as an addition to the office building and to the main factory building. It adds 130,000 square feet of floor space to the Ford Plant, bringing the total up to more than 9 acres.

Then followed a new machine shop costing $90,000.

The power plant was also enlarged at a cost of $110,000.

In four leading Canadian cities, handsome new buildings were erected as branch assembly plants, sales and service stations. Each one is as large as many automobile factories. All are of similar construction, being modern fire-proof buildings of brick and reinforced concrete trimmed with mat glazed terra cotta. The bases are of granite. The interiors are finished and fitted in accordance with the very best modern practice.

One of the branch buildings is located at Montreal, 119-139 Laurier Ave., East. It is a four story building containing 124,000 square feet of floor space and costing $333,000. Over 100 people are employed here.

The Ford branch at Toronto, 672-682 Dupont St., is a five-story building containing 132,000 square feet of floor space. The number of employees is about 150.

The third new branch building is at London, Ontario, at 680-690 Waterloo Street. It is a three story structure having 49,872 square feet of floor space and was erected at a cost of $161,000.

The immensely increasing demand for Ford cars in Western Canada made it necessary to build a fourth new branch at Winnipeg. This is a handsome five story building located at the corner of Portage Avenue and Wall Street. A quarter of a million dollars was put into its construction.

The total cost of these new buildings erected by the Ford Canadian Company since war began is $1,724,000. Additional to this are thousands of dollars spent to equip these buildings.

Why has this been done ?

First, to provide Ford owners with greater service facilities. Each of these branches is so completely equipped with parts and machinery as to be able to build a Ford car complete. Also they act as a base for the hundreds of Ford dealers in their part of the country, each of whose place of business is a well equipped Ford service station, in giving more rapid and more efficient service to Ford owners.

The second reason for this great amount of development work is to be found in the attitude of the Ford Canadian executives. If these men had followed the policy of many Canadian manufacturers they, with seeming good judgment, might have held up these plans for such enormously expensive construction work.

But such was not their attitude. They were convinced that progress and prosperity were assured in Canada.

This decision was of vast benefit to Canadian industries, Canadian merchants and Canadian workmen in such a critical time as this. Practically all the material for these buildings was purchased in Canada. Canadian workmen were employed in their construction. And after the construction work was over, the whole community benefitted from the enthusiastic, successful, wealth producing and distributing activities of these big establishments.

FRENCH OFFICERS TRAIN FRESH SERBIAN ARMY

LONDON, March 28.—The Serbian seat of government at Corfu is in a hotel, the largest establishment on the island, formerly run by a German, but now entirely taken over for Serbian cabinet meetings and administration. Here the ministers have their offices, and in company with Albanian officials recently arrived, mingle in the drawing and dining-rooms. Premier Paschwitz with his patriarchal white beard, is a striking figure in these ministerial groups. Crown Prince Alexander recently arrived at the hotel and received a royal reception from the Serbian army already on the island. The Serbian forces are variously estimated from 80,000 to 130,000, with 22,000 Albanians. French officers are now training this remnant of the old armies back to their old standard.

"There will be a surprise some day," said the Serbian minister to the Associated Press, "when some point is hard pressed, and 150,000 Serbian troops spring back to the firing line in a complete state of equipment and efficiency."

This training has been quietly going on at Corfu, and Corfu is very near the allied base in the southeast.

DOGS IN BATTLE SMOKE

"Man's best friend," the dog, is playing no small part in the great European war. These real dogs of war are trained as carefully as the soldiers, and very often their work on the battlefield is worthy of a cross of honor, if it were the fashion for dogs to wear such things. But a pat on the head and a kind word is all they ask.

According to Secretary O. Bert, of the French association for training war dogs, who is back wounded, from the front, three classes of dogs are now being used. They are patrol dogs, linking dogs and ambulance dogs. The first class are always of the sheep-dog breed, chiefly from Picardy or Flanders, and noted for their intelligence and sense of smell. Their calm temperament, too, counts for much in the noise of battle.

Once selected, these four-footed warriors need only four nights' teaching to make them fit for their work. The chief difficulty is to make them learn not to bark, but only to growl. Violence is never used. A tap or two on the head is enough when they begin to bark.

The training of the dogs for linking purposes—that is, for keeping two bodies of troops in touch with other—requires two months. The course of an ambulance dog is nearly a year. The ambulance dog, unlike the patrol or linking dog, must be taught to bark, so as to give notice to the battlefield searchers that he has found a wounded man.

DOGS LOANED BY PEASANTS.

The patrol, or sentinel, dog works only at night. During the day he stays in the trenches with the men, most of his time asleep. Then, when night descends, he leaps with the patrol or listening party out of the trenches and passes the hours till dawn in the perilous work of patrolling the four or five hundred yards of front the party is assigned to cover. Thanks to him, the party is insured against surprise by enemy patrol.

War dogs are recruited from all parts of France, but the majority are loaned by peasant farmers for the duration of the war.

"I have already three sons and a son-in-law with the colors; now I give my dog—and VIVE LA FRANCE!" wrote one father of a family to the association when offering his dog.

MOLYBDENITE IN A COUNTRY ROAD

In the middle of a country road near Enterprise, Ont., Sheffield township in the county of Lennox and Addington, the discovery was made recently of a valuable deposit of molybdenite. The road had been in use for more than 70 years and large chunks of ore and oxides were scattered on the roadway for more than 200 feet. The discovery was made within 100 yards of a farm house.

The ore body is more than one thousand feet in length and has been tested the whole distance with most satisfactory results. So far the width of

THE PROHIBITION BILL ANOTHER LETTER FROM K. S.

The main features of the Government Bill, introduced by Hon. W. J. Hanna:

"Prohibition will go into force about Sept. 1st, 1916.

No referendum until after the war. The Macdonald Act of Manitoba with modifications, is the basis for the present bill.

The sale of liquor in the province prohibited except for medicinal, chemical and sacramental purposes.

Druggists, wholesale and retail, will sell liquor for medicinal purposes."

Must have doctor's prescription."

WHAT MR. ROWELL SAID.

"No member of the house could be more gratified than I am at the introduction of the bill. The Liberals will be glad to give the bill their most sympathetic consideration. Our attitude is one of sympathy and our desire to work out the best possible bill to accomplish the purposes in view." Mr. Rowell pointed out that it was just about four years to the very day since he first introduced his resolution for the abolition of the bar.

"On that occasion my Hon. friend (Mr. Hanna) said it was a joke. I am glad to see to-day that we are agreed on both sides of the house on this important question."

THREATENED SPLIT.

What the World (Con.) said: "Action bordering almost a split in the party took place in the Conservative caucus during the session on the prohibition bill, if rumors current in Toronto are to be believed. It has been known for some time that twenty or thirty members of the Conservative party are opposed to the prohibition bill. The discussion occupied three or four hours and some of the Conservative members voiced their opposition to the bill in no mild language. In fact, it was said that forty of them, including Sir Adam Beck, threatened to break away from the party."

It was noticeable that during Hanna's speech in the house that the bulk of the applause came from the Opposition, and not from the Government members.

Mark Irish, Conservative member for north-east Toronto, has a resolution before the house calling for compensation to license holders.

NOTES.

A proposal of S. Ducharme, Liberal member for north Essex to exempt tile drainage in taxing farm property, was voted down by the Government. Mr. Ducharme pointed out that the Government, in refusing to grant this reform, were penalizing the farmers, who improve their land.

The Government also defeated the formal resolution of the Opposition disapproving the excessive and extravagant expenditure on the new Government House and the heavy maintenance charges which will result.

On Thursday the Legislature took a day off and visited the Agricultural College and prison farm at Guelph. At the prison faam they saw an institution which has already cost $1,750,000 and accommodates only 300 prisoners,—thus making an average capital expenditure of the amazing sum of $6,000

FRENCH OFFICERS TRAIN FRESH SERBIAN ARMY

LONDON, March 28.—The Serbian seat of government at Corfu is in a hotel, the largest establishment on the island, formerly run by a German, but now entirely taken over for Serbian cabinet meetings and administration. Here the ministers have their offices, and in company with Albanian officials recently arrived, mingle in the drawing and dining-rooms. Premier Paschwitz with his patriarchal white beard, is a striking figure in these ministerial groups. Crown Prince Alexander recently arrived at the hotel and received a royal reception from the Serbian army already on the island. The Serbian forces are variously estimated from 80,000 to 130,000, with 22,000 Albanians. French officers are now training this remnant of the old armies back to their old standard.

"There will be a surprise some day," said the Serbian minister to the Associated Press, "when some point is hard pressed, and 150,000 Serbian troops spring back to the firing line in a complete state of equipment and efficiency."

This training has been quietly going on at Corfu, and Corfu is very near the allied base in the southeast.

DOGS IN BATTLE SMOKE

"Man's best friend," the dog, is playing no small part in the great European war. These real dogs of war are trained as carefully as the soldiers, and very often their work on the battlefield is worthy of a cross of honor, if it were the fashion for dogs to wear such things. But a pat on the head and a kind word is all they ask.

According to Secretary O. Bert, of the French association for training war dogs, who is back wounded, from the front, three classes of dogs are now being used. They are patrol dogs, linking dogs and ambulance dogs. The first class are always of the sheep-dog breed, chiefly from Picardy or Flanders, and noted for their intelligence and sense of smell. Their calm temperament, too, counts for much in

Once selected, these four-footed warriors need only four nights' teaching to make them fit for their work. The chief difficulty is to make them learn not to bark, but only to growl. Violence is never used. A tap or two on the head is enough when they begin to bark.

The training of the dogs for linking purposes—that is, for keeping two bodies of troops in touch with other—requires two months. The course of an ambulance dog is nearly a year. The ambulance dog, unlike the patrol or linking dog, must be taught to bark, so as to give notice to the battlefield searchers that he has found a wounded man.

DOGS LOANED BY PEASANTS.

The patrol, or sentinel, dog works only at night. During the day he stays in the trenches with the men, most of his time asleep. Then, when night descends, he leaps with the patrol or listening party out of the trenches and passes the hours till dawn in the perilous work of patrolling the four or five hundred yards of front the party is assigned to cover. Thanks to him, the party is insured against surprise by enemy patrol.

War dogs are recruited from all parts of France, but the majority are loaned by peasant farmers for the duration of the war.

"I have already three sons and a son-in-law with the colors; now I give my dog—and VIVE LA FRANCE!" wrote one father of a family to the association when offering his dog.

MOLYBDENITE IN A COUNTRY ROAD

In the middle of a country road near Enterprise, Ont., Sheffield township in the county of Lennox and Addington, the discovery was made recently of a valuable deposit of molybdenite. The road had been in use for more than 70 years and large chunks of ore and oxides were scattered on the roadway for more than 200 feet. The discovery was made within 100 yards of a farm house.

The ore body is more than one thousand feet in length and has been tested the whole distance with most satis-

THE PROHIBITION BILL ANOTHER LETTER FROM K. SI

The main features of the Government Bill, introduced by Hon. W. J. Hanna:

"Prohibition will go into force about Sept. 1st, 1916.

No referendum until after the war. The Macdonald Act of Manitoba with modifications, is the basis for the present bill.

The sale of liquor in the province prohibited except for medicinal, chemical and sacramental purposes.

Druggists, wholesale and retail, will sell liquor for medicinal purposes.

Must have doctor's prescription."

WHAT MR. ROWELL SAID.

"No member of the house could be more gratified than I am at the introduction of the bill. The Liberals will be glad to give the bill their most sympathetic consideration. Our attitude is one of sympathy and our desire to work out the best possible bill to accomplish the purposes in view." Mr. Rowell pointed out that it was just about four years to the very day since he first introduced his resolution for the abolition of the bar.

"On that occasion my Hon. friend (Mr. Hanna) said it was a joke. I am glad to see to-day that we are agreed on both sides of the house on this important question."

THREATENED SPLIT.

What the World (Con.) said: "Action bordering almost a split in the party took place in the Conservative caucus during the session on the prohibition bill, if rumors current in Toronto are to be believed. It has been known for some time that twenty or thirty members of the Conservative party are opposed to the prohibition bill. The discussion occupied three or four hours and some of the Conservative members voiced their opposition to the bill in no mild language. In fact, it was said that forty of them, including Sir Adam Beck, threatened to break away from the party."

It was noticeable that during Hanna's speech in the house that the bulk of the applause came from the Opposition, and not from the Government members.

Mark Irish, Conservative member for north-east Toronto, has a resolution before the house calling for compensation to license holders.

NOTES.

A proposal of S. Ducharme, Liberal member for north Essex to exempt tile drainage in taxing farm property, was voted down by the Government. Mr. Ducharme pointed out that the Government, in refusing to grant this reform, were penalizing the farmers, who improve their land.

The Government also defeated the formal resolution of the Opposition disapproving the excessive and extravagant expenditure on the new Government House and the heavy maintenance charges which will result. On Thursday the Legislature took a day off and visited the Agricultural College and prison farm at Guelph. At the prison farm they saw an institution which has already cost $1,750,000 and accommodates only 300 prisoners,—thus making an average capital expenditure of the amazing sum of $6,000

within 100 yards of a farm house. The ore body is more than one thousand feet in length and has been tested the whole distance with most satisfactory results. So far the width of the ore has not been determined, but the trenches have disclosed ore for a width of more than sixty feet.

FARMERS IGNORANT OF VALUE.

The fact that this important discovery was not made sooner is due no doubt to the fact that the farmers in the district were unfamiliar with the mineral. Previous to the war the demand for it was not large and few prospectors were on the lookout for it.

The nature of the ground was such also as to receive scanty attention from prospectors so for years a steady traffic has passed over what promises to be a fortune of considerable proportions.

The property is located four and a half miles from the railroad and is reached by a well graded level wagon road. The find was worked for several months last year and it is quite likely that operations will be resumed again as soon as the weather permits.

The property has been named the Cameron Mining Company and the directors are Ottawa men who are quite well known.

STILL ANOTHER MINE.

Situated four miles from the Cameron property is another known as the Chisholm mine. There is an interesting touch of history to this property also. Fifteen years ago it was purchased from a farmer for $1,500. It was believed it contained mine deposits.

It was worked for a time but with unsatisfactory results. It has lain idle for a number of years but since the war started and molybdenite has advanced thousands of dollars per ton the property has been extensively prospected for the molybdenite content with such amazing results that a few days ago it was sold for the sum of $150,000 to a well known firm in the Ottawa Valley.

Among the Ottawa men interested in the Cameron property are Messrs. W. H. Blair, of Blairs Limited; J. H. Cameron, customs broker, Robert Gamble, 394 Wellington street, David Robertson, 192 Bronson avenue, Geo. E. Ewan, John Wright and Foster MacKenzie.

CANADIAN RED CROSS TWENTY YEARS OLD.

The Canadian Red Cross Society was not prominently in the public eye before the outbreak of the present war, but none the less it has been in existence for 20 years, a period which covers almost half the life of the International Red Cross, which was founded in 1864.

The Canadian Red Cross was organized in 1896 by Dr., now Surgeon-General G. Sterling Ryerson, and was the first branch established in the Overseas Dominions of the Empire. It is also older than the American Red Cross.

In the United States at present a campaign is being conducted for Red Cross preparedness. No such campaign was necessary in Canada. Thanks to the forethought and wisdom of its pioneer founders, the Canadian Red Cross had built up an efficient organization.

It was incorporated by Act of Parliament in 1909, and is now the official channel between the Canadian public of Canada, the British Red Cross Society and the Military Authorities. Application is being made to the present Parliament for some minor alterations in the constitution, but there will be no change in the Society's status as an ex officio Department of State.

The immense volume of work which the Canadian Red Cross has performed since the war, shows conclusively, the value of Red Cross preparedness. For the future, every citizen should do everything in his power to enable the Red Cross to discharge its obligations toward our sick and wounded. The Society, although invested with an official status, received no income from the state. It relies altogether on public contributions.

RED CROSS NOTES.

Rossland, B.C., has given $10,000 to the Red Cross.

4524 cases of Red Cross supplies have been shipped since the war from Quebec City.

Bushby Park, which the king loaned to the Canadian Red Cross has been transformed into a hospital and is now receiving patients.

The Duke of Connaught at Xmas sent 100 pheasants to the Canadian Red Cross hospitals in England and France.

An important feature of Canadian Red Cross work are the hospital visitors who bring the wounded into personal touch with the Society, and collect information that serves considerably to alleviate the anxiety of relatives. Recently Mr. Gaspar Clark of east Toronto, after reading in the casualty lists, that his brother was wounded, cabled to the Red Cross in London, and in two days received full details as to the nature of the wound. This information has been gathered by a Canadian Red Cross visitor in Boulogne. This staff of visitors now numbers 400.

The Duchess of Connaught Canadian Red Cross hospital at Cliveden is constantly winning golden opinions for its efficiency and perfect organization. It is considered a model hospital and a great tribute to Canadian Red Cross effort.

Trusting all departments into consideration, the Canadian Red Cross is doing admirable work abroad. The only limit to the good it can accomplish is the limit of contributions from Canada. Every increase of Red Cross effort in Canada gives the Red Cross so much power to ameliorate the unhappy lot of Canada's wounded and prisoners.

The other mosque we wished to visit was just across the street, before we went in our guide had to go in to pray, so we sat down on the steps and watched the people coming to the call of prayer. Before they go in they all take off their shoes and put on a pair of sacred slippers, of course we had to put on slippers also, but over our boots.

This mosque is the most beautiful in the city and certainly beats any church I ever saw. The roof is supported by pillars all of one piece of granite, this divides the building into four little rooms and a large central one, the ceilings are all of different patterns. The pulpit and stand for the Koran are inlaid with a mosaic of ebony and ivory. On the floor are large rugs about an inch thick, I suppose one of them would be worth a fortune, there are no seats in a mosque, just the pulpit, stand for the Koran and altar at the east.

From here we took donkeys and rode about two miles east through a part of the city which was mostly a cemetery, until we came to the tombs of the Mamelukes or the Royal family of Egypt, they are all buried in one large building.

There is the tomb of Mohammed Ali, the builder of the "Mosque of the Citadel," a picture of which I sent you, also the tomb of Ibrahim, Pasha, his son, whose statue stands in the market square, he is the one who began the Suez canal, the tombs were hardly worth going to see but the donkey ride was fine.

To finish up the day we went to the moving picture show.

I must not forget to mention the wedding procession we saw. While we were going through the museum we heard a band going by and as there was a little balcony out over the street we just stepped out to see.

There were two bands leading, then came a limousine all decked out with flowers, in which rode the bride (or so I suppose), we could see no one, the windows of the car being covered, then came six or seven automobiles carrying the brides' friends, all ladies and children. The custom is for the bride to be taken to the groom's home in a closed carriage so no one can see her, she takes with her, her friends and after they arrive the feast follows.

"Because I seen Ike Mengel in front of the Binger House this morning, and I asked him how is business. He smiles and says, 'Thank Gawd!' Then he says he would like to duplicate on them forty-twenty-tvos and double up on sixteen, seventeen and eighteen."

"That's bad," Morris commented.

"I should say so," Abe added. "Why, them forty-twenty-tvos is stickers, as you know, Mawruss, what trouble we had to sell 'em, and if he gets rid of that last order already so quick, Mawruss, he done it by auction houses. Ain't it?"

Morris nodded gloomily, and Abe walked back to the office in the rear of his commodious salesroom.

"Miss Cohen," he said to the book-keeper, "you should please write to Mengel Bros. & Gunst: 'Gentlemen, we inclose your statement of your account, which, as you are aware, is past due, and we must say we are surprised we should not hear from you.' Please send us check at once, as we pay our bills prompt on the day, and we are obliged to you to do the same. Yours truly."

He wiped away a slight moisture from his forehead, for when Abe dictated correspondence he emphasized his words with appropriate gestures, which, in the case of dunning letters were apt to assume an especial vehemence.

"That ought to fetch 'em," he said, and, carefully selecting a slightly damaged cigar from the E to J customers' first and second credit box, he strode into the salesroom puffing great clouds of indignant smoke.

Morris Perlmutter was making up his line of samples for an impending western trip.

"Well, Abe, what are you going to do about Mengel Bros. & Gunst?" he asked.

"I wrote 'em a letter," Abe replied—"a dirty letter."

"A letter!" cried Morris. "What good's a letter? Sue 'em, Abe. That's all. We can't do no more with them people. They're just thieves, Abe. You had no business to sell 'em anyway."

"Me sell 'em!" Abe exclaimed. "I'm surprised to hear you, that you should talk as I was passing by I thought I'd just drop in and ask your advice what you think in the matter."

"You're welcome," Abe replied, and Mr. Unterberg, with a nod to Morris, left the store.

Morris, who had stood transfixed during the latter part of the conversation, gazed at his partner in silent astonishment.

"Dat ain't no lie, either, what I tell him," Abe apologized. "Mengel Bros. & Gunst ain't no millionaires, believe me, but they are good bright boys—too bright for you, Mawruss. Ike Mengel ain't never done nobody for a cent. That ain't saying nothing about a thousand dollars. As for Unterberg being afraid, he needn't be, Mawruss—he needn't be a bit afraid that he'll ever see the color of their money. No, siree, Mawruss, if any one says Mengel Bros. & Gunst to me, Mawruss, I hear a noise like a petition in bankruptcy."

"But the way I understand it," said Perlmutter, "you gave 'em a good send off. Unterberg thinks it's a recommendation, that Mengel Bros. & Gunst is good for a thousand."

"Does he?" Abe retorted. "All right, let him think so and ship 'em the order at once. We may be suckers, Mawruss, but you know what the fellow once said, Mawruss. Suckers likes company, and don't you forget it."

For ten minutes Abe smoked in silence, and then he rose and re-entered the office.

"Miss Cohen," he said to the book-keeper, "don't you send that letter. I'll go up and see Mengel Bros. & Gunst myself."

III.

Ike Mengel, the senior member of the firm of Mengel Bros. & Gunst, was adding up figures on the back of an envelope as Abe came in, and apparently found no pleasure in the operation.

"H'lo, Ike," Abe said, "what are you doing? Figuring up your overdue accounts? I think I see ours there. Five hundred and thirty-two forty-five, ain't it?"

"Is it?" said Ike. "You got a good memory, Abe."

"I got a good memory and good judgment, too, Ike. When a merchant like Philip Unterberg says to me, as he did say to me today, 'What do you think of Mengel Bros. & Gunst? Shall I ship 'em a thousand dollars, Abe? Are they prompt pay?' I say, 'Well, Mr. Unterberg, I'd like to have a little time to look at my books. I got so many customers, Mr. Unterberg. I can't tell you exactly how each of them is prompt or not. But if you come around tomorrow, Mr. Unterberg, then I let you know.' That's the kind of man I am, Ike; I tell 'em straight what I think. Now, supposing you give me a check right away for $532.45, and supposing Unterberg asks me tomorrow what I advise, I can say, from the heart, Ike, 'Mr. Unterberg, Mengel Bros. & Gunst always pays us in good season.' Ain't it?"

Ike Mengel sat in profound thought for a moment or two and then rose slowly to his feet.

"Miss Levison," he said to his book-keeper, "make Potash & Perlmutter a check for five-twenty-two forty-five."

"Five-thirty-two forty-five," Abe corrected firmly.

"Excuse me," said Mengel. He waved an additional apology with his grimy, fat hand. "You are right."

I fix him yet, that—that scoundrel—Abe Potash!"

"Mr. Unterberg, one moment," Morris protested.

"And you, too," Unterberg went on—"you too. You try to steal my trade."

You come here with your samples and your impudence and take away my best customers."

"Ain't it an open market?" Morris asked, but Unterberg brooked no interruption. Besides, he had just conceived a happy idea.

"Yes," he continued, "you come here to Kugel & Fishblatt, one of my best and oldest customers; always buy of me a big bill of goods—a thousand, two thousand; bought a thousand of me this morning, and always prompt pay. And you try to take 'em away under my very nose."

"Mr. Unterberg, do me the favor," Morris commenced again conciliatingly. He renewed his clutch on Unterberg's elbow, but the latter shook himself free and strode angrily away. Morris gazed after him, shrugged once or twice and, resuming his sample case, continued toward the buyers' office, with his assistant close at his heels. Mr. Fishblatt greeted him in person.

"Ah, Mr. Perlmutter," he said, extending a large patronizing hand, "glad to see you, even though I'm afraid I can't do much business with you today. We're somewhat overstocked in our cloak department."

"Mr. Fishblatt, don't say that!" Morris cried. "A busy concern like this ain't never overstocked. Wait, now, just a moment, and I'll show you our style forty-twenty-two, especially in sizes sixteen, seventeen and eighteen."

Mr. Fishblatt leisurely examined Perlmutter's line, and when Morris departed he had procured a record breaking order. It had been obtained only after much protest from Mr. Fishblatt and a great deal of anxious persuasion by Morris, so that he felt justly proud of his achievement.

"Well, Mawruss," Abe said ironically as his partner re-entered the store, "I suppose you got rid of all them forty-twenty-tvos."

"Why not?" Morris murmured.

"A fine chance," Abe retorted bitterly.

"And all sixteen, seventeen and eighteen," Morris went on calmly; "also them old princess styles and one gross style forty-one-twenty-five."

Abe's lower jaw dropped.

"You struck it good, Mawruss, what?" he said.

For answer Morris spread out to his partner's astonished gaze a thousand dollar order.

"Mr. Fishblatt himself gave it to me," Morris said.

Abe took the paper and read it over twice; then he went to the customers'

There was a notable gathering of jobbers and wholesalers at the meeting of the Boston Store's which occurred a month later. Morris and Unterberg were both there, and they vainly scanned the faces of the guests for the features of Philip Unterberg. They also made examination of the schedule of indebtedness, but nowhere could they find the name Unterberg.

"Ain't Philip Unterberg in the rest of us?" Abe inquired of Louis Marcus, a creditor, who was standing near him. "Why, no," said Marcus. "He was here yesterday, and he told me last time he was in Kugel & Fishblatt's he collected a hundred dollar bill that was three weeks over due. He met Morris going in to give him warning, but I don't know what happened. He says, too, that he told you from him that Kugel & Fishblatt is two good bright boys."

OUR NAVEL ORANGES.

We Got Them From Brazil, Where They Were First Cultivated.

The navel orange first appeared at Bahia, Brazil, as a bud sport of the Portuguese variety of orange, Laranja selecta, and was first propagated by a Portuguese gardener at Bahia in 1822.

These statements and those that follow are made on the authority of A. D.
Shamel, physiologist of the United States department of agriculture, Riverside, Cal., who tells in the Journal of Heredity the results of an expedition to Brazil made by himself, P. H.
Dorsett and Wilson Popenoe.

There are about 50,000 trees growing navel oranges at Bahia.

The navel orange was introduced into the United States in 1873 by William Saunders, horticulturist and landscape gardener of the patent office.
He got the American consul to send him some of the trees, which he budded on seedlings grown in the government greenhouses. He sent two to Mrs. L. C. Tibbetts of Riverside, Cal., and the others to Florida. The latter never amounted to much, but the former thrived and are still living and bearing fruit. All the navel orange trees in California are their progeny.
There are about 100,000 acres of this variety in that state, and about 10,000-000 boxes are produced every year.

The navel orange cannot be grown from seed, as it contains no seed. It is in California generally budded upon stocks from the Mission sweet seedling orange.

THE SEVEN DAYS' KING.

Short and Tumultuous Career of a Neapolitan Fisherman.

In 1647, when the kingdom of Naples was under the grinding rule of Spain, a fisherman of Sorrento was stung to madness by the indignities offered his wife by Spanish officials because she had attempted to smuggle a few handfuls of flour. So furious was he that he tore down an edict that had just been posted by the authorities.

The whole population, including women and children, rallied around him.
Forty years of Spanish oppression had made them frantic. They terrified the viceroy, resisted the soldiers successfully and killed many of the Spanish residents. They secured a revocation of oppressive edicts, the abolishment of oppressive taxes and full pardon for all who engaged in the insurrection.

The fisherman, whose name was Masaniello, was the leader in all this and became the idol of the people. He ruled Naples for seven days, but his success seems to have turned his head.
He became dictatorial and oppressive and was put to death by the populace.
Hence he is called the "seven days king."—Argonaut.

"We" and "They."

In the smaller towns and country districts people say "we" when they speak of governmental activity. "We" built the courthouse and got it done at low cost. "We" organized the high school.
"We" pay the expenses of keeping prisoners in the jail.

In the big cities people say "they."
"Why don't 'they' do thus and so?"
People wonder when the city government falls down. It isn't a personal

PRECIOUS POSTAGE STAMPS.

Issues That Bring Joy to the Heart of the Philatelist.

One of the questions asked us most frequently is, Which is the rarest of all the stamps? There are not a few claimants for this honor, all of which are exceedingly rare, stamps of which but a single copy is known to exist. Indeed, there is evidence which leads us to believe that some stamps were printed and used of which no copies at all are known to be in existence.

Of those stamps of which only one copy is known, the first is a post-master's provisional issued at Boscawen, N. H. Another is a stamp from British Guiana. Only one copy of this is known and is in a celebrated collection in Paris, probably the largest collection in the world.

In 1893 the Niger Coast Protectorate issued a series of surcharged stamps, all of which are scarce, and some of them are in the ranks of the world's greatest rarities. This refers especially to the twenty shilling values. Of the 20 shillings, surcharged in violet, only five copies were ever printed; of the vermilion surcharge, only two

TOWER OF SKULLS.

A Legacy Left by the Turks to the Servian City of Nish.

There have been many tragic episodes in the history of Nish, in Servia.
In the fifteenth century the Turks captured the city, and for 300 years it remained in their possession, although there were brief periods when the Austrians held it. Then, in 1809, the Servians, who had recovered most of their country from the Turks, besieged Nish, but were defeated with great loss. The Turks to celebrate their victory erected a rough tower composed alternately of lumps of rock and skulls of Servians cemented together.

It is related that there were originally 1,200 skulls in the tower of Nish.

For a long period it was the habit of travelers to Nish to carry off a skull as a souvenir, and this reduced their numbers. But in the Russo-Turkish war the Servian army, under the command of King Milan, besieged Nish, and the fortress fell on Jan. 10, 1878.

The remaining skulls were then reverently buried by the Servian troops except one, which was too deeply imbedded in the plaster to be extracted.

Fanny, the sister of Charles Dickens,
...was one of the first students entered at
...the old Royal Academy of Music when
...it opened its doors at Tenterden street
...in 1823, and at that time the students

African Marriage System.

You cannot fancy how deeply compli...cated the African marriage system is ...nor how many ramifications there may ...be to a woman palaver. One day Mr.
...Heminger was sitting in a hut talking ...with two members of his congregation,
...wives of one husband. He was talk-

Turks' Names For Greeks.

The Turks have definite names for
...the Greeks who inhabit Ottoman terri...tory and for those who are their own
...masters. The latter are Yunan and ...their country Yunanistan—names de-
...rived from "Ionia"—while the Greeks
...and Turks are Rum. By origin this is ...simply "Romans" and is an inheritance
...from the Byzantine days, when the in...habitants of Constantinople, the New ...Rome, were called Romaioi, while the
...provincials were known as Helladikoi.
..."Rum" was the conquering Turks'
...name for the Byzantine empire. It sur...vives in Roumella, while the popular
...Greek language of the present day is ...still known as Romaic. But every
...Greek, in Greece or in Turkey, calls
...himself a Hellene.—London Chronicle.

Pinched Him Financially.

An esteemed citizen went into a shoe
...store in a metropolitan town and asked
...to see some leather goods. Another

...hauling out some boxes.

"That is a nice looking shoe," re...marked the customer as the salesman
...pushed his foot into a shiny right and ...started to lace it. "What is the price?"

"This pair is $8," responded the sales...man as he finished the lacing and ran
...his hands across the vamp.

"Does it pinch you any?"

"Well, I should say it does!" was the ...prompt rejoinder of the customer.
..."Give me something about $5 cheaper."

Armenian History.

The history of the later years of the ...Armenian kingdom is bound up in the ...history of Am. The stronghold city
...became the capital of the Bagratid
...kings of Armenia in 961. The Byzan...tine emperor captured it in 1046, and
...it was then a hive of many scores of ...thousands, a wealthy city and an in...viting one. The Seljuk Turks carried
...fire and sword throughout its confines
...eighteen years later. The warlike
...Georgians took it five times between
...1125 and 1200. The Mongols overran
...it in 1239, and an earthquake in 1319
...completed the work of ruin. The great ...cathedral, the most perfect survival,
...was founded in 1010, just at the begin-

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Diversity is just as important in fruit growing as in any other kind of farming. It pays to make a long season by having both early and late fruits.

In carrying out this idea with tree fruits the June plum comes prominently into the scheme. Strawberries, bush fruits, cherries, harvest apples, etc., open the season, and for four months there may be a good income from these products.

Just here I would like to emphasize the importance of farm canning operations. By simple canning methods which every intelligent housekeeper understands and which beginners readily learn fruit products are doubled in value and may be kept almost indefinitely. There is a large waste of garden and orchard products unless the owner employs preserving and canning processes.

Plums, as a rule, are hardy and prolific. The June plum is worth $4 become discouraged should persist in efforts to keep an apiary. By continued study and experiments difficulties can be overcome, and in time the bees can be made profitable themselves, while at the same time they contribute materially to the profits of fruit growing by the work of fertilizing the trees while in bloom.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Lettuce for use in hotbeds should be sown now.

The Progressive is one of the best, if not the very best, of the autumn bearing strawberries.

For the home garden choose vegetables of best quality. Quantity is not the important thing.

Most vegetables need rich, well worked soil. Having this and adding thorough cultivation and care anyone can have a No. 1 garden.

Tramp the manure in the hotbed until it is solid, then put the glass on and leave it a few hours before putting the soil in. This will make heating sure.

Swiss chard should be included in the seed order. It makes good "greens" and is a rapid grower. It may be sown at the same time as early cabbage and transplanted to frames or field.

KEEPING CABBAGES.

Can Be Stored for Winter Use in a Barrel Out of Doors.

When the cellar is too warm and you must devise a plan to keep a few cabbages for family use try putting them in a barrel out of doors. Put a headless barrel into the ground, leaving the top slightly above the surface, and put in the close trimmed heads. Leave room enough at the top to put in a little clean straw or hay—or papers—and spread an oilcloth over it or some boards to keep the rain out.

It does not harm even if the cabbage freeze, and you can open your cache any time in winter and take out a head.

But one may say: "Oh, that's no good. I've tried it and they all rotted."

The answer to that is, "You may have tried it, but you didn't do your work carefully." Failure will follow shiftless disregard of rules.

In following any such plan use a little good horse sense. You must plan to keep water out of the barrel so let it be tight enough to keep out seepage. Then so fill up and level the surface that the drainage will be

THIS YEAR'S SEED CORN.

Have you plenty of seed corn where it is safe and ready for the 1916 planting? If so you may consider yourself rather fortunate, as there is likely to be a serious shortage of first class seed corn at planting time. Any amount of corn failed to mature and ripen properly last fall. Where this was true it will be well to look around for seed corn from the 1914 crop. There is probably plenty of this if it can be located, but it should not be used untested. It is just possible that the man with a cribful of good old corn can make some money by selecting, testing and offering it on the seed corn market this spring.—Farm Progress.

EARLY CABBAGE VARIETIES

Great Care Should Be Exercised in the Purchase of Seeds.

Jersey Wakefield has been the leader among early cabbages for more than fifty years, writes R. L. Watts in the Country Gentleman. All the early gardeners praised it, and most of our gardeners to-day claim it is superior to all other early varieties. It is very early, medium in size, pointed, and solid. The heads are valuable for salad purposes.

Charleston Wakefield attains marketable size from a few days to a week later than Jersey Wakefield. It is larger in size and requires slightly more space in the row. If the market does not demand extreme earliness, the Charleston type will be found more profitable than the Jersey Wakefield, especially if the crop is sold by the crate or barrel.

Copenhagen Market is a comparatively new variety that is attracting much attention among commercial growers. It comes a few days later than Jersey Wakefield, but it possesses merits that, in the minds of some gardeners, more than overbalance this disadvantage. The heads average at least a third larger than Jersey Wakefield. The spread of the outside leaves is less, so that closer planting may be practiced. The heads are roundish instead of pointed, and they are very solid when properly matured. They also carry better in transportation than the Wakefield types.

A strong point in favor of Copenhagen Market is its uniformity in time of heading, which permits the ground to be cleared of the cabbage early in the season and another crop started. A very successful trucker in western Pennsylvania, who grows about 20,000 early cabbages annually, now plants no other variety.

Early Summer is a well known variety. It ripens with Charleston Wakefield or perhaps a few days later. The heads are flat and fairly solid.

Succession, a midsummer variety, is regarded by many as the best bred cabbage in America. It usually runs remarkably uniform in type. The heads are large and solid at maturity. Seed sown the 1st of February should produce ripe cabbage in any part of the north before the 1st of August.

Whatever the variety selected, the utmost care should be exercised in buying seed, for there is marked variation in the strains of different varieties.

per bushel, or fully twice as much as the later varieties. The trees are hardy, and little trouble is experienced from insects. In the spring there are usually some insect pests, but if once destroyed there is no more trouble for the rest of the season. The plums are easy to harvest, as the trees are not very high. The money for this product of the farm comes when other fruit crops are beginning to ripen, and on most farms it is greatly appreciated.

Currents and gooseberries, like plums, give the farmer a few days in which to turn around. The work of picking, marketing, and canning is less urgent than with strawberries. In planning a little farm all these facts must be kept in mind. Then there are other products which seem to harmonize with fruit growing and the little farm all these facts must be kept in mind. Then there are other products which seem to harmonize with fruit growing and help to keep up a cash income without a great deal of drudgery. Poultry and bees belong in this category.

Honey is an interesting side line to fruit growing that may be profitably enlarged upon in many localities with benefits accruing two ways. The honey crop itself is often a money crop, and aside from this bees are about the best thing going to develop full fruiting and perfect fruit in an orchard.

There are many instances where people with old orchards uncertain and unsatisfactory in fruiting have developed them into fine producers by keeping a lot of bees and distributing the colonies over the orchard so that they get at the trees in bloom time.

It may be necessary—probably will—to grow other crops to supply the bees, such as white clover, buckwheat, alfalfa, and so on. However, the return from the honey crop will justify all this. Meantime the bees will get part of their support from the apple trees while they are in bloom, and in return they will improve the quality and yield of the apple crop itself enough to make them a profitable investment.

Of course some people take more kindly to or have better success with bees than others. It is a mistake to be easily disheartened. Bees seem essential to the welfare of orchards, and those who have had trouble and away from the barrel. Another point is that the cabbage must be carefully trimmed, removing every broken or decaying leaf and putting in only sound, smooth heads. If you put in any rubbish you not only invite decay, you make it certain.

It is well to put a few sticks in the bottom to leave an air space. And do not try to see how closely you can pack them, but rather lay them in loosely and so place them that there will be air spaces all through.

If you aim to keep the frost out it will require considerable covering, and if you do that you will be likely to make your cache too warm and that will induce rot. The best way is to plan to keep the cabbage close to the freezing point and far better have it frozen than too warm. But if it freezes it must be kept frozen, for it will never do to have it freezing and thawing out a half dozen times during the winter.

After the cabbage is in and you have filled up the top of the barrel with a little clean straw or hay, rounding it up in the centre, then put over a piece of oilcloth or heavy canvas. This is to turn off the water. Have it large enough so that all of the dripping will be outside the barrel. Then turn a square box over it and it is done. The box should be just big enough to hold the cloth in place.

Root Storage Pit.

Where there are no cellars or storage rooms available the old fashioned pit makes a good place in which to store roots and some kinds of vegetables for the winter. Put in a well drained place, dig a couple of trenches, crossing each other in the center of the pit, cover these with boards, leaving an open space in the centre. Put in a ventilator, cover the bottom of the pit with straw and pile up the vegetables. Then place the straw over the roots, then dirt, then more straw if in a cold region, more dirt, and your pit will keep the most severe weather from injuring the vegetables.

POTASH IN PLANTS.

Marsh grass, marsh sedge, seaweed and pine straw are among the materials in which potash in small agricultural quantities has been found. The chemist of the South Carolina experiment station reports after analyses of these plants:

Four samples of marsh grass contained respectively 0.84 per cent., 2.39 per cent., 1.16 per cent., and 1.99 per cent. potash.

A sample of dead marsh sedge contained 0.03 per cent. potash.

Two samples of marsh sedge ashes contained respectively 0.18 per cent. and 1.38 per cent. potash.

A sample of seaweed contained 5.85 per cent. potash.

A sample of long leaf pine straw contained 0.41 per cent. potash.

Marsh grass also contains a considerable quantity of nitrogen and a small quantity of phosphorus.

All such materials should be gathered up because the potash rapidly leaches out of the dead material. This fact proves its value when applied to land, for it is water soluble potash.

Why the "Baltic" Sea?

How the Baltic sea got its name is unknown. It looks thoroughly classic—"Mare Balticum." But Tacitus knew this stretch of water as the Suevic sea, from the neighboring people of the Suevi, and the name Baltic does not appear before the eleventh century in the "Chorographia Scandinaviae" of Adam of Bremen. It is supposed to have some connection with the great and little "Belts." Germans, Swedes and Danes call these waters the East sea (Ostsee)—a name which is obviously impossible for a Russian.—London Standard.

Retouching the Ready Made

It is not every woman's good fortune to be able to cut and fit and make her own clothes. Some have not the time, while others have not the ability, and many have neither. The busy woman especially hates to give her precious minutes to long hours with the dress-maker, and it is for such that the shops put on their racks and counters such a number of stylish ready made garments. For the fastidious woman, however, it is something of a shock to see herself, so to speak, coming down the street in the identical frock or suit she is wearing. For her there is nothing to do but to invest in the cheaper ready made garments and put the remainder of the allowance into fixings that will make the frock, suit or blouse partake of her own personality. After all, one's clothes should reflect one's personality.

For sheer tailored blouses there is a happy expedient that any woman can resort to with a few stitches, and that is to apply under the sheer material a length of figured or contrasting colored ribbon. This will "dress up" the blouse with the smallest possible expenditure of time and money.

The styles are so accommodating at present that a frock may be completely changed with very little trouble. An imported gown in a smart shop suggests a way of putting "the punch" into a cheap taffeta dance frock. The imported model had a very straight gathered skirt, which was turned under at each side for a distance of four or five inches at the hem to reveal a lace petticoat. This gave a bouffant appearance without interfering with the cut of the skirt. A girdle of old blue velvet contrasted beautifully with the flesh tint of the frock. A tulle scarf was suggested for softening the corsage. A cheap drop skirt on an otherwise good looking dance frock may be omitted entirely, the lace petticoat sufficing to give the fluffy appearance at the foot.

Leather collars and cuffs, from new leather to be bought at a leather house or from the arms of a good pair of kid gloves where the hands are worn out, will make a bought suit take on a different air. A leather belt added in place of the fabric belt will give tone to a Russian blouse coat. New lining will make a cheaper plush coat look much more expensive and dressy, as often the lining is where the manufacturer has saved his pennies to make his profit on the coat.

A large suit skirt may be shirred into fitting at the waist line, and a belt of material, which comes from the piece taken off the hem, added for style.

Braiding on pockets will dress up a plain suit, or the addition of new fur will often help out.

Do Your Spring Sewing Now

The long winter days are ideal for sewing, and the woman who is wise will begin her spring sewing now.

When March comes we all get the spring fever. The call to come out of doors and listen to the birds sing is pretty hard to resist, but if necessary sewing is left undone until those balmy days come the chances are one will resist this springtime call and remain in the house at the very time of the year when one should be out in the air as much as possible.

Many women protest at sewing. They declare it does not pay—that in these days of ready made garments sewing is a waste of time—but sewing does pay. If it is a lost art, as many women seem to think it is, why is it taught in most schools nowadays, as well as in the fashionable finishing schools? True, in the latter places sewing is more in the line of embroidery, but many a woman in times of stress has turned to good account the sewing and embroidery lessons taught her in the schoolroom.

Every woman should learn to sew and should take a certain pride in that accomplishment. Where children are in the household, being able to sew for them is a godsend to the average mother, and the woman with any taste at all can design little frocks far smarter than any ready made garment. Furthermore, two of these dresses can be obtained for the price of one ready made.

Table and bed linen can also be obtained now at "white sales" at most attractive figures, and if one can hem-stitch many charming pieces can be had at a nominal cost.

Sewing is just as necessary today as in the days when women spun their linen thread and afterward wove it into cloth, and where money is "an object" the work of "making ends meet" comes less hard on the woman who can sew.

Another excuse women offer for not sewing is that they "haven't time." A large number of women never have any time simply because they do not manage their work systematically. They are always on the verge of nerv-

Queen Wilhelmina has occupied the throne of the Netherlands for twenty-five years from the 23d of last November, celebrating the event very quietly with her husband, Prince Henry; their little daughter, Princess Juliana, and her mother, dowager Queen Emma.

She would not allow her subjects to spend any money on festivities in her honor, stipulating that the appropriation made by the state for this occasion should be donated to the fund for the war sufferers in Holland. The newspapers, in recently noting this kindly act of charity, brought to the minds of people in other countries the first remembrance that the young queen had actually passed a quarter of a century upon the throne. ## THE CLOSET DOOR.

How to Make a Small Closet Spacious Enough For Clothes.

The possibilities of the small clothes closet are often underestimated by many women. The narrowest wall closet, measuring at the most only a foot in depth and two yards in length, will hold more clothes than one would imagine if proper hanging apparatus is used. There are rods now that come for the closet door which stand out at angles to the door and to which may be attached many coat and skirt hangers. These rods may be had in nickel plate in all lengths, or they may come in white enameled wood, with hooks attached for holding the clothes hangers. Some are made with a hinge, so that they can be let down when not required for use.

The service these rods render for small space is easily seen when you realize that layers and layers of clothes on hangers may be slipped over them or over the hooks and when the closet door is opened may be easily selected without disturbing half a dozen other coats and frocks to find the garment wanted.

A similar arrangement for the sides of a small closet was tried by one ingenious girl. Instead of trying to hang several hangers on one hook, she stretched across the width of her closet from one hook to the outside wall a bit of stout picture wire. Over this she was able to slip any number of clothes hangers with large hooks and could select one garment without disturb the others. If the width of the closet permits, it is a good plan to stretch a rod the length of the closet and hang the hangers crosswise across this, like the large cases in the suit or dress department in the shops.

One end of a closet may be shelved to hold a girl's hats if she is limited for space. It is to be preferred to the bandbox under the bed, especially if a cretonne bag made sufficiently large is at hand to cover the best bonnet as it reposes on the shelf.

WHAT THOMAS A. EDISON SAYS OF THE CIGARETTES.

The injurious agent in Cigarettes comes principally from the burning paper wrapper. The substance thereby formed is called "aerolein." It has a violent action on the nerve centres producing degeneration of the cells of the brain, which is quite rapid among boys. Unlike most narcotics this degeneration is permanent and uncontrollable I employ no person who smokes cigarettes.

Of all the pioneer work done in the interests of musical education in Canada, nothing has been more productive of good than the inauguration of the Toronto College of Music Examinations. These Examinations are now widely known and are eagerly sought by teachers and students in all parts of the Dominion. A system of Local Examinations has been established whereby those living at a distance from Toronto are afforded the same advantages as those in attendance at the College. These Examinations are held at Midsummer and at other times as may be arranged. The Musical Director of the College is Dr. F. H. Torrington, who is familiarly known as "The Father of Music in Canada".

Women's Patriotic Service and Red Cross Work

Through the Daughters of the Empire.

We beg to thank Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Empey, of Switzerland, very heartily, for a parcel of clothing and a splendid quilt brought to our room some time ago, all of which is most acceptable; also one of our townsmen for two suits of clothes, which are much appreciated.

We would urge others who are looking over the family wardrobes at this season, to send us what they can spare, which will help those in need.

We would also advise those working at our surgical dressings not to relax their efforts, which have so far been productive of such splendid results, as this "labour of love" is deeply appreciated in France, and by the Serbians.

Our chain teas are progressing satisfactory, and are demonstrating how easy and pleasant a way they provide of raising funds for a worthy cause.

Our room is open as usual on Thursdays and Saturdays until 5:30 p.m., when we are glad to see all friends and workers.

Detroit Physician Dead.

Dr. Kenneth M. Gunsolus, one of the oldest physicians in this city, and connected with the Wayne County Medical Society for many years, died suddenly after a brief illness at his home in Detroit on Friday last. Dr. Gunsolus was born in Napanee, Ont., in 1850. He graduated from Queen's University, Kingston, and later came to Detroit in 1891. He was a member of all the prominent medical societies, and conducted a clinic for several years under the Wayne County Society. Surviving are the widow, Elsie M. Gunsolus, and two children.

East, of Lansing, Mich. Mrs. VanAlstine, who was well known in Napanee as Caroline McGinness, was attended by Mrs. Charles McFarland, and made a very lovely bride in a handsome gown of pale blue taffeta and silver lace. Mr. East was assisted by his brother, Jesse H. East. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. J. A. Halmhuber, was witnessed only by the immediate families and a few very close friends. Mr. and Mrs. East will reside in Lansing, where Mr. East is general salesmanager for the Oldsmobile Co.

WEDDING BELLS.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of Mrs. Calvin Arnold, Selby, at high noon, Wednesday, March 29th 1916, when their youngest daughter, Lucy L. was united in marriage with Mr. Kenneth L. Weese, third son of Mr. and Mrs. James Weese, Centreville. While the wedding march was being played by Mrs. Rev. Cooke, the young couple took their places under an arch of evergreen, the bride presenting a charming appearance gowned in cream satin de chene with lace trimmings and bridal veil. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Milton A. Doidge, while the bride was assisted by Miss Mabel E. Weese, sister of the groom, and who wore Belgian blue silk with lace. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. Cooke, pastor of the bride. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a chain and cameo pendant; to the groomsmen, gold cuff-links and to the pianist, a cameo set bar brooch. Many features contributed to the pleasure of the occasion, the beauty of the day, the joyous ringing of the church bell, and the sumptuous wedding dinner, being some of them. The many beautiful gifts received by the bride, expressed the high esteem in which she is held, by those who know her best. The young couple left on the afternoon train for points west, the bride traveling in a smart tailored navy suit. Upon their return they will take up their residence at Centreville, where Mr. Weese is a prosperous young farmer. Their many friends join in wishing them a long and happy life.

A Tribute to Miss Nesbitt.

In losing Miss Nesbitt, Trinity church has lost one who has long been a strong influence in the musical and spiritual affairs of the church. In her capacity, as organist, she has ever given of her best, and her work has always been that of a finished artist.
In her recent recital, on Sunday evening, March 19th, she showed such fine sense and delicate discrimination, in her selections, which proved that she was a musician of a very high order. She has an indomitable spirit, which will win out in whatever sphere she is placed. We wish for her a most brilliant future. She has a host of friends, who very much regret her departure—hoping it may only be temporary, and who wish her every success in life.

carrying in his hand a lighted lantern.
Some one meeting him said: "You're blind. It's all the same to you whether it's day or night. Of what use to you is a lantern?" "I don't carry the lantern in order to see the road," replied the blind man, "but to keep some fool like you from running against me and breaking my pitcher."
